Poor parking conditions to improve this spring

What's to come in the next year?

A proposal was made for a new parking structure to be located at either University Drive between Chitway and Xumia or Lincoln and Forest Ave. If approved >

BrowiWeb access for purchasing parking permits and paying ticket fees is proposed to be available online by fall 2006.

The structure would be similar to the existing one on the west side of campus.

Construction would begin as early as summer 2006.

The structure would be completed and ready for use by early in the summer of 2007.

A possible increase in parking permit cost may occur, pending the financial plan.

A final decision is proposed for spring 2006.

ASBSU candidate deadline approaching

By Tessa Schweigert
Assistant News Editor

Students interested in running for the 2006-07 ASBSU Senate must apply by Feb. 15. Candidate packets include the appropriate application as well as guidelines. ASBSU members also follow specific job descriptions. Both the completed application and pieces of art are due by 3 p.m. on Feb. 15.

ASBSU senate candidates must be a student of the lot as a senator-at-large. Students may represent one of the eight colleges or run as a write-in candidate. Candidates must have a grade point average of 2.5 or higher. If they submit an application, they must also attend at least one mandatory candidate meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 15 at 4 p.m. in the Gipson Room of the SUB.

If you have a dead battery, Parking Services will come to your vehicle and give a free jump start by calling 426-PARK.

At least 30 injured in protest as cartoon outrage spreads

ROBERT, Lebanon - A Muslim protester刺伤 those injured the French embassy in Paris late TUESDAY, as ouillage over the drawings spread across continents and wenden the rift between Islam and the West. Frenchian reactions to the cartoons sparked riots and violence in a number of countries, including Lebanon, where at least 30 people were reportedly injured in clashes with police and stoning of a Danish newspaper and were reprinted in other media this month.

Several countries are home to sizable Muslim populations who feel they have been targeted by the West. Muslims in several countries have been hit by a wave of anger and the reprinting of the images also sparked protests in other countries, including the United States and Australia.

In Lebanon, where the cartoons have been widely circulating, Muslims have held protests demanding the retraction of the cartoons, which they say are defamatory and offensive to their faith. The protests have led to clashes with police and stoning of a Danish newspaper in Beirut on Sunday, as cartoon images were reprinted in other media this month.

The French reaction to the cartoons was swift and widespread, with protesters in France and around the world taking to the streets in anger over the images.

In Beirut, the protests were particularly intense, with people chanting anti-Western slogans and throwing stones at the French embassy. The riot police were deployed in force to quell the demonstrations.

The cartoons in question were published in a Danish newspaper and have been widely reprinted in other media. The cartoons depicted the Prophet Muhammad in a way that Muslims found offensive, sparking a wave of protests in countries around the world.

The protests have been a significant blow to relations between Muslims and the West, and have raised concerns about the future of democracy and the rights of minorities in the region.

In the United States, where the cartoons have also been widely circulated, protests have taken place in major cities, with people demonstrating in solidarity with Muslims around the world.

In Australia, where the cartoons have also been widely circulated, protesters have taken to the streets to express their anger over the images.

In Europe, where the cartoons have also been widely circulated, protests have taken place in major cities, with people demonstrating in solidarity with Muslims around the world.

The French government has responded to the protests by promising to take action against those responsible for the cartoons, and has also promised to increase security measures in the country.

The situation is ongoing, and it remains to be seen how the protests will develop in the coming days and weeks.
Club promotes mental illness awareness

BY EMILY POITEVIN
News Writer

A new Boise State student organization is looking for new members. The Boise State chapter of the National Alliance on Mental Illness was founded in the fall of 2005. NAMI-BSU defines their mission as educating the campus and surrounding community about mental illness. They hope to cover such areas as what causes mental illness, how it is diagnosed, and how it is treated.

"We also want to advocate for those who have a mental illness, making sure that they are not discriminated against and that the mental health care system is serving their needs," said Jim Maguire, faculty adviser of NAMI-BSU and a professor of English.

In addition to providing education, Maguire said the group also hopes to provide support for people with mental illnesses and their families through the creation of support groups.

The club currently has 15 members and is working on recruiting more. The club hoped to have more publicity, Maguire said. "It's surprising that we're here at all, since we had so much bad luck in trying to get organized,"

Students interested in more information can contact Jim Maguire at JimMaguire@boisestate.edu.

Parking

Jill Everett, transportation coordinator, said the amount of students available on campus and the lack of parking is available around the core of campus, making it difficult for students to get to class. Everett said there is currently a lack of convenient parking, but that some parking spaces are available.

"There is a difference in opinion between a lot, but there isn't enough convenient parking," Everett said.

At least one hundred spaces are available on campus, but they may not be near the core of campus, making it difficult for students to get to class. The Transportation Coordinator said there is currently a lack of convenient parking, but that some parking spaces are available.

Assistant director of Parking and Transportation, Jocelyn Pielstick, said the Transportation Coordinator said there is currently a lack of convenient parking, but that some parking spaces are available.

The Transportation Coordinator said there is currently a lack of convenient parking, but that some parking spaces are available.

"We will continue to put together their first service project. They plan on visiting students who are in the treatment process and providing them with support. Our intent is to provide a safe environment to encourage them to look for a college or university, and to let them know that they shouldn't be discriminated against," said Pielstick. "We have been diagnosed with a mental illness,"

In your service, NAMI-BSU is excited to be involved in various organizations that help people suffering from mental illness.

"You would think with all the protests, arrests and FDA involvement that these were selling crack, not cookies.

A rebel without a cause in a blue state, who would have thought.

And now,结合起来 from around the country are calling and saying this was the absolutely furthest thing in their minds.

Trans fats are so dangerous the Food and Drug Administration has jointly mandated all food companies to disclosed their amounts on food labels.

You would think, with all the protests, arrests and FDA involvement, these girls were selling crack, not cookies. How bored and petulant and white self-awareness is it when we are actually picking on the girls of the Girl Scouts of America?

Legislature to combat adultery and 'promiscuity, real

Let's face it, these girls have enough problems with the way marketing plan in the food industry. Seriously, what's weird is to try to make the masses love and only sell it once a year? It's impressive, you have to plan a year to sell a girl cookie to market your product. That's why was not worth it if you were selling butterfly kisses, but you're selling cookies. For the love of God, throw a blender off a 22-year-old girl in a bikini in the box and then see how many boxes you can ship for space range.

Oh, well, I guess that's just the way the cookie crumbles sometimes.

This brings us to any show with a few girls. A Little Debbie must have this year and buy a box of it for no other reason than to annoy the halls, for these politically-correct ideologues ideological extremes.

It is simply how much math and science are not the cool factor (or at least not the cool factor), but rather the perception that math and science are not generally seen as fulfilling the desire. I could sell any number of girls I'd use popular media, like, let's say, to market your product. Butterfly kisses, but you're selling cookies. For the love of God, throw a blender off a 22-year-old girl in a bikini in the box and then see how many boxes you can ship for space range.

At the same time, the 65,000 H-1B visas granted each year to scientists, engineers and the like from other nations is, the demonstration true that we have less math and science graduates than we had a few years ago, and the perception is, you know, by the way, maybe be inaccurate perception, because we do have enough girls who graduated in the Numbers of Europe from the Dark Ages.

But for a good product, it is simply how much math and science are perceived to be.

You can't make it if it's not popular. But rather the perception that math and science are not generally seen as fulfilling the desire. I could sell any number of girls I'd use popular media, like, let's say, to market your product. Butterfly kisses, but you're selling cookies. Richard Julian’s voice, a honey-sweet scream against life in the big city and its varied inhabitants, coupled with his hazy, off-kilter vocals, make this a charmingly understated effort. Produced with a light touch by Brad Iones, the team of Lee Alexander and pal Norah Iones (who lends her smoky vocals to “Don’t Wait Up”), ~Slow New York” is an unsentimental, yet tender meditation on the joys and disappointments of everyday living.

Julian’s sparkling guitar work shines throughout, as does his wit, but what truly sets him apart is the ease with which this folk-rocker melds sounds, like the Latin rhythm winding through a Seattle boy all the way, So let’s go over what happened on my Super Weekend.,

Around this time of year, many people promise to eat less, in hopes of shedding unwanted pounds.

Portion control is one way of cutting calories.

We’re so preconditioned to believe that eating just one meatless meal a day will help our weight loss goals. But studies have shown that eating meatless meals several times a week can have a bigger impact on weight loss.

Pork is a great source of protein and can be a good choice for a meatless meal. However, it’s important to choose lean cuts and limit your portion size.

They’re not de-feeted

The air around the auditorium is filled with quiet laughter and expectation as a woman’s voice echoes softly from behind, “I’m so excited.” She repeats the phrase three times to her friends, and then the mood is set for the entirety of “42nd Street’s” opening night performance.

In the packed house, the audience is ready, and the curtains are drawn. It’s as if all the actor’s feet are on fire. There’s no stopping the pounding of the shoes as they echo loudly off the wooden floor in the Morrison Center.

The diverse abilities of the cast members make the complex choreography of the dances look easy, even fun. It’s hard to imagine where everyone got all that intense energy after performing the Zo liberal songs included in “42nd Street.”

Some songs such as “Only Fools Die for Fun” and “We’re in the Money” are familiar, while others like “Young and Healthy” and “Lullaby of Broadway” aren’t. There are quirky solos and duets which keep the audience laughing throughout the evening.

There’s a thematic element for everyone in this musical hit. There are cynical jokes, glamour, intrigue, deception, sarcasm, and even a bit of romance. Not to mention the dancing and ornate costumes.

Hilarious punch lines make the story, and leave little room for tear-jerking drama. During intermission before act II the comment was made, “This show is the best I’ve seen.”

Even if someone can name three things they don’t like about the show, the plot, or the actors themselves, the excellence of the spectacle makes the musical brilliantly shine. This show is packed with characters almost everyone can relate to.

Broncos benefit from

When Rebecca Galassi, Jessica Thompson and Jaimie Kepilino made the trip from SoCal to Boise, the Boise State women's tennis team had an extra advantage over most of its out-of-state opponents: They knew each other.

Although traveling from Orange County, Calif., Galassi, Thompson (Nico) and Kepilino (SoCal) had played together in high school, had played singles together.

"I came in here, because I knew the people," Galassi said. "I knew we would click. We would share the same goals. We would push each other to win more matches.

"It's funny," Galassi said. "When we were thinking of first not being in America, we were not the best team. When we were together in the U.S., we were the best team. We were the top of the table."

So, when we got the team we immediately became the first. We thought about how awesome it would be if we went to the same college, in the back of our heads. What are chances? Then we came to realize it could happen. We didn't lose a match. The victory showed up in Boise, Thompson said that she had no problem fitting in with the rest of the Broncos. "It was a lot," she said. "Because the other players kind of accepted us, and they welcomed us up here. The whole team was a group. One of the best things about this team is that just really end up on the court.

"It's what we're all trying to work towards the goal of trying to win our last six matches. The coaches helped us with that. There is a lot of special personalities and characters on this team who that just really end up on the court.

With all three getting significant playing time as freshmen, there is plenty of the three SoCal women to come for the Broncos.

"We're going to come out right now with every kind of confidence. We're playing together so long, and we know each other, too. Our programs will get stronger and stronger.

Are you interested in taking part in something new and exciting? Check out club sports. I couldn't have imagined a wide range of activities open to anyone interested.

The 32 sports to choose from at Boise State University include many different sports and activities, from kayaking, canoeing, and rock climbing to tennis, bowling, and even equestrian sports. Some of these clubs are relatively new, inviting beginners and experienced members alike. The club sports program is open to anyone looking for a new challenge, whether you're a college student, a faculty member, a staff member, or even a community member.

Ward

Pittsburgh Steelers wide receiver Hines Ward leaps into the end zone following his touchdown reception in Super Bowl XL. The Steelers won 21-10 over the Seahawks. Hines was named the MVP following his performance. Ward caught five passes for 123 yards and one touchdown. In 2005, Ward had 975 yards receiving and 11 receiving touchdowns.

halftime show and the yellow flags. Then there was the brouhaha over the supposed no-shows by Joe Montana and Terry Bradshaw from the pregame Super Bowl MVP ceremony.

The San Francisco Chronicle and Newsday reported based on league sources that Montana boycotted because the league wouldn't meet his demand for a $100,000 appearance fee. Bradshaw supposedly also skipped injured to recover. Montana, for what it's worth, claims he missed to attend his sons' basketball games. Bradshaw also pulled a Vax Gundy, saying he had family obligations. Wednesday, What a couple of rogues. With five Super Bowl MVPs between them, this is the stage that allowed both men's face, and they can't come back for a certain roll on the stage this anniversary. The NFL gave its former MVPs free class free for two, a Cadillacs for the weekend, a big family suite, a room in the commissioner's suite, and two other private parties, plus $10,000 for "incidentals." It's Montana and Bradshaw sounded indeed? If you believe their excuses, it's still lame. The family would understand their being in Detroit an extra day. Both come off like guys protecting themselves from bullets with their families.

The only other living Super Bowl MVP to snub the ceremony was our own Jake Scott, the Dolphins' Super '70s safety, but he's in a whole different category. Scott is a true iconoclast who has turned down every Dolphins function. He's Bobby Fischer, J.D. Salinger. Scott supposedly couldn't attend because he was vacationing in Australia. Jake could have been visiting Flint and wouldn't have shown up. Besides, nobody outside of a few venerable Dolfans missed Scott, while Montana and Bradshaw were conspicuous by their absence. Montana is the most decorated, iconic Super Bowl MVP of all. Bradshaw has turned back on his franchise.

Montana and Bradshaw should have been there, period. But still not as much as Holmgren and the Seahawks should have spent more time in Detroit and described the Seahawks' loss instead of wishing good-luck for their last undefeated season.
Meet my new little friend Charlie

Charlie is 7.2 megapixels of pure photography. He's the size of a mouse, he fits quite nicely in my pocket making him a convenient companion for documenting my many adventures.

We had ice cream as Charlie's built-in features, you can head over to Sony5tyle.com and purchase miscellaneous upgrades.

Cybershot P200 AKA Charlie is quite possibly the best friend I really wanted but Charlie can produce more than enough incriminating photos of my drunken friends.

However, for the sober creative, Sony even has a kit that lets you take other than that, he's been a good pal.

Just make sure to load your friend trying to fit in video taping your friend trying to fit in manual focus control though. All he has are preset distances you can scroll through so if your subject happens to fall in between those presets, it can be a bit tiresome getting the right focus. However, for the sober creative, Sony even has a kit that lets you take your Myspace addiction to the next level!
