Boise, BSU join in celebration of Earth Day

Both the city of Boise and Boise State University are sponsoring a number of events to help celebrate Earth Day. April 22.

There are three major events occurring in Boise. A documentary entitled "Global Warming," which explores the issue of climate change and global warming in the world today, will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the Bishop Room at SUB. The documentary is a production of the new television show "60 Minutes," and is also accompanied by a presentation given by the National Weather Service. Both the documentary and the presentations are free to students.

An Environmental Agency Fair will be held Friday, April 21. The event will be held on the Quad at 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The fair gives students a chance to learn from local and national environmental groups on a variety of issues dealing with making the earth a better place. Information on how to get involved in specific issues concerning the environment will also be available.

A major event co-sponsoring Earth Day is Shack City. Participating students will use cardboard and packing tape to construct a cardboard city they will then spend the night in.

The only required materials are worksheet, sleeping bags, pillows and blankets. The goal of the event is to raise awareness about the issue of homelessness in Boise and in the world. Shack City meets Friday, April 21, at 9 p.m., and continues into the morning of April 22.

The Volunteer Services Board sponsors all of these events. Students interested in more information on any of the events can contact the Office of Student Life, and students interested in participating in Shack City City can contact Sen. Joseph Burdick.

Islamic Jihad continues attacks on Israel

JERUSALEM — Islamic Jihad is one of the Middle East's smaller militant groups, but it's been one of the more persistent and troublesome forces affecting events in Israel, Gaza and the West Bank. Unlike the larger Islamic group Hamas, which declared a temporary halt to suicide bombings last year, Islamic Jihad has pressed on, claiming responsibility for most of the nine suicide bombings that have struck Israel in the last 15 months. Thirty-six people have been killed in these attacks.

Islamic Jihad has been behind some of Israel's deadliest suicide bombings, including the October 2003 bombing of Ministries'campus in Haifa, which killed 21 people. The attack was one of the first Palestinian acts to become a suicide attack.

A year later, Israel boasted what it said was an elusive Jihad training camp in Syria, where one of the group's leaders, Ramadan Shalah, lives. Islamic Jihad was founded by some Palestinian fighters living in Egypt who were expelled to Gaza after the assassination of President Yasser Arafat in 1994. In Gaza, they formed the Islamic Jihad, which has become more potent during the past few years.

In 2002, after a Jihad suicide bombing during Passover killed 10 people, Israel declared a tempo-

Jewish violence operation that led to the death of another top Islamic Jihad leader and the arrest of two others.

While Hamas has successfully moved into the political arena, Islamic Jihad has found little to no success so far. In fact, it's been unimportant so far.

That's creating a dangerous situation for the new Hamas-led Palestinian government, Israel is warning that it will hold Hamas responsible for suicide bombings such as Monday's attack.

"Hamas is behind every explosion when there are new demonstrations of political power," said Israeli Foreign Minister Silvan Shalom. "Hamas is behind the explosion of every political earthquake."

Hamas is the group responsible for suicide bombings such as Monday's attack.

The group's founder, Sheik Ahmed Yassin, was assassinated in 2004, and since then, the group has been in disarray. Hamas' military wing, the Al-Qassam Brigades, remains as strong as ever.

"We are dealing with a new and more dangerous group, Hamas," said Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert. "We are dealing with a new and more dangerous group, Hamas."

Towers dormitory resident, Tanice Krischuk, died on Sunday following a collapse from a blames injury while on Boise State University's biology trip to Idaho Falls.

According to Frank Zang, director of communications and marketing at Boise State, Krischuk collapsed on Friday at Deer Flat Wildlife Refuge. She was pronounced dead on Saturday.

Krischuk was a biology major and was on the biology class at Boise State, according to her family.

The Boise State family is mourning the loss of one of its students. "The student will be remembered by all who knew her," said Zang.

BSU to implement plus/minus system

COURTESY OF NEWS SERVICES

To more accurately reflect the actual performance of its students in the classroom, Boise State University announced on Monday that the university will implement a new grading system for the 2007 semester.

The +/- grading system will better identify the superior work of the student with the higher grade and a C grade. The +/- grading system will give credit to the student with the lower grade and a C grade. A C+ would receive 1.7 quality points per credit hour and a C- would receive 1.3 quality points per credit hour.

The +/- grading system will also provide students more opportunities to better justify, for example, why a student on the borderline between a B- and C grade would see the benefit of earning a B-.

Arts programs in schools provide valuable experience for children

BY SHANNON MORGAN
Guest Opinion

Music, art and theatre have long been seen as means by which children can express themselves. In schools across the United States, children have been exploring their talents and expressing their creativity in this manner. It is my belief that music, art and theatre are vital parts of a child's education. By allowing children to participate in these programs, schools are providing valuable experiences that can shape a child's future.

However, it is not the history of music or art, but rather how these programs affect the arts that we can learn from. Let's imagine a scenario where a child is deciding what to do after high school. The child is considering music as a career. The child has been exposed to music programs in school, and has developed a passion for music. This passion may have led to the child choosing music as a career path. The arts programs in school have played a significant role in shaping the child's future.

Music, art and theatre are not just important for children's individual development, but also for the development of society as a whole. These programs provide valuable experiences that can shape a child's future.

BSU immigration march

I was shocked when I picked up last Thursday's Arbiter and saw the headline: "Immigration March." The Arbiter is the student newspaper and the headline clearly indicated that it was about the immigration march at BSU.

Immigration is a complex issue, and it is important that we have open and honest discussions about it. However, the Arbiter's coverage of the march was, in my opinion, biased and one-sided.

The Arbiter's coverage of the immigration march was not balanced. The paper did not provide a variety of perspectives on the issue, and the coverage was slanted to support the protesters' views. The coverage did not provide a comprehensive understanding of the immigration issue.

The Arbiter's coverage of the immigration march was not factual. The paper did not provide accurate information about the immigration issue. The coverage did not provide a comprehensive understanding of the immigration issue.

No matter where, it's always 30 Seconds to Mars

BY MARIANABERKE

Culture Editor

With their husband-and-wife songwriting team and synth-heavy, industrial rock sound, 30 Seconds to Mars have managed to build a following that extends beyond the music industry. Their latest album, "A Beautiful Lie," has been critically acclaimed and has seen significant sales success. The band's unique sound and visual style have earned them a dedicated fan base that continues to grow with each new release.

The band's performance at the 2006 MTV Video Music Awards in New York City, where they performed their single "This Is War," was a highlight of the evening. The performance featured elaborate lighting effects and a large screen that displayed images of the band members and fans from around the world.

As the band heads out on their "30 Seconds to Mars" world tour, fans can expect to see a show that is as visually stunning as it is musically impressive. The tour will feature a state-of-the-art stage design and a set list that includes hits from both "A Beautiful Lie" and their previous albums. Don't miss your chance to see one of the most exciting rock bands of the year live on stage.

I never thought I'd say this, but I didn't want to go to Jamba Juice. I've had my fill of smoothies. But then I thought, 'What the heck? I'm easily entertained.'

Jamba Juice provides more than just smoothies. Their goal is to provide a heavenly Jamba Juice experience. With friendly service, you can walk in miserable and leave feeling refreshed. For example, one of the smoothies I ordered was the 'Strawberries Wild,' which boasts a blend of fresh strawberries, banana, and pineapple juice. It's a perfect way to cool off on a hot day. I watched my smoothie being made in front of me, and it was delicious.

Jamba Juice offers different smoothie sizes: Small, Medium, and Large. Each size has a different flavor profile. For instance, the 'Jamba Juice' smoothie is a blend of fruits like strawberries, bananas, and apples. It's a great way to enjoy a healthy snack on-the-go.

Jamba Juice is not just about smoothies. They also offer a variety of other items, such as juices, soups, salads, and even breakfast bowls. I tried their breakfast bowl, which was filled with fruits, granola, and yogurt. It was a great start to my day.

Jamba Juice has locations all over the city, making it easy to find one near you. I recommended trying the 'Jamba Juice' smoothie for anyone looking for a refreshing and healthy snack.

In conclusion, Jamba Juice is a great place to visit for those looking for a healthy and delicious snack. Their friendly service and wide variety of options make it a must-visit for anyone in the city.

30 Seconds to Mars performed at the Big Easy Sunday night as part of their tour.

"It's called scar tissue," Milicevic interjected.

"State team," Wachter said. "But it's really hard to have function back in it."

According to Wachter, the band is hard pressed to put anything else out, so they plan on releasing a new album before the tour is over. Wachter and Milicevic are actually still working on the new album, and the band was originally only planning on releasing their debut album, "Attack." Wachter and Milicevic signed with the label after the first album was already recorded.

Therefore, meshing as a band and reportedly finding new members is nothing to worry about. The band is ready to start recording their second album, and they still need to make up; "ally add-ons to 30 Seconds to Mars."

"Time Students III" is the only thing that affected our schedule," said Wachter. "On the back burner at a time when it was going and it was so fast that you just jump and never really stop to be like, 'I don't even know..."

"I have been thinking," the band member continued. "I think about when I was younger and I know I am not that same person..."

"I've definitely lost my mind." Wachter said. "And we are all a little bit crazy.""You have to be a little crazy," Milicevic agreed.

"It's hard to explain, but we have always been kind of the band that have had the music before the story," Wachter said. "That's how 30 Seconds in Mars is able to keep their performances fresh and entertaining for their fans - they have the music first."

"If they don't have the music, you can always Hire us and you will want to hire our job," Milicevic said. "It's a job well done and we don't want to do any other job."

"It was a night where music was..." Wachter said. "We're lucky to have our job."

"Opening, you get 20 minutes to play. And now we get an hour - on our own place and we get to kind of step up and push more and now we have a higher gap. We're just growing," Wachter said.

"When we joined the band, the ship was going and it was so fast that you just jump and never really stop to be like, 'I don't even know what song she's right "The Kill" is the band's next single and new video they have put on hold for now. They really felt the band coming into their own. They really felt the band coming into their own."

"It was a night where music was..." Wachter said. "We're lucky to have our job."

"Like I've said from the beginning," Wachter said. "I think about when I was younger and I know I am not that same person..."

Rugby squad voyages to MaggotFest

This weekend in Missoula Mont., members of BSU’s Men’s Rugby club will wrap up their season. Members will “wore on” to other teams to compete in the 30th annual Maggottfest rugby tournament.

BY MARK THOMSEN
Sports Writer

Thirty five teams from the United States and Canada will compete in this year’s Maggottfest. Since Maggottfest is not just a handful of matches but a festival-style tournament, teams are encouraged to not only play hard on the field, but also wear costumes, sing songs, and even perform other acts.

"There are two matches left some guys banged up, and depleted a lot of our money," Andy Villegas, BSU Rugby Club President said. "This season many of the BSU players are paying for trips out of pocket, and back to back weekends are a hardship to some. However, some BSU members will team together and play with other teams at the final eight tournament that has been hosted by the Missoula Rugby Club since 1977. This season marked the return of a men’s rugby team to BSU after two seasons.

"It has been really successful," Villegas said. "At the beginning of the season, two of the members of the team had never played rugby, and really wants to see us succeed," Villegas said.

BSURugby has received a helping hand from another Treasure Valley rugby club, the Snake River Snakes, who have played in BSU since 1972 and won a national title in 1996. Every week BSU practices with the Snakes, in order to speed up the learning process.

"They even purchased our jerseys for us," Villegas said. "Andy Villegas and his BSU teammates who can make the trip to Maggottfest this weekend hope to "wore on" to the Snakes for some of their matches.

The BSU rugby team is planning a full fall and spring schedule next year and invites anyone interested to check them out by visiting the BSU Student Recreation Center Web site and checking out our club sports.

The team practices Tuesday and Thursday nights at West Jr. High at 6:30 p.m.

Coll and Shockey named Western Athletic Conference tennis players of the week

Boise State’s Tiffany Coll has been named the WAC Women’s Tennis Player of the Week for the week of April 17. This is her first honor this season. Coll captured her seventh straight week, improving her season singles record to 8-0.

Coll’s 15th consecutive singles victory came against Idaho’s Niklas Persson, 6-4, 6-0. Coll’s 20-9 with Shields in doubles competition.

"The Snakes have been really great to work with," Villegas said. "They even purchased our jerseys for us." Coll and Shields capped an undefeated week of doubles competitions with victories over Marko Bundalo and Nejc Srnole and of No. 28 Colorado, ranked No. 62 Denver. Schoeck, as senior from Renningen, Germany, has amped up the regular-season home matches. The All-American has been honored in both singles and doubles competition. On Saturday, Schoeck defeated Oscar Furtado in the No. 7 doubles final. Schoeck has an 18-99 in singles and doubles, and scored a national team sweep with Shields in doubles position. Schoeck has been honored with the Western Athletic Conference Men’s Tennis Player of the Week for the week of April 17. This is the second consecutive week the Broncos have been honored.

Duke lacrosse players were arrested in connection with a rape investigation that has made national headlines, defense lawyers said Tuesday they'll be able to prove the students charged weren't with the accuser at the time when the assault was allegedly taking place.

Anderson said he has learned this in the course of representing his client and talking to other defense attorneys, but he has not yet presented any evidence that they weren't present at the time when the assault was allegedly taking place.

In a statement, Durham County Sheriff Ken Hardy said he had to charge "all three of the accused lacrosse players," and that he couldn't prove the students weren't present at the time when the assault was allegedly taking place. "He's having a celebration of Boise State Athletics and I want to invite everybody," Patton said. "We think tennis, it's not a sport, it's a lifestyle. Come out, see your emotions, cheer your teammates emotionally, appropriately, and let the guys play physically and get out of it a proper victory." This weekend, pre- and post-game events, will be some of the things people will really remember. There will be an opportunity for tennis fans to see some of the best in the nation.

The WAC Championships is a men's tennis tournament. Patton and his team are determined to make it count.

Small businesses race to MySpace market

Chella Cardona has found the perfect advertising vehicle for her young, small business. And it doesn't cost her a cent.

She's able to link close contact with loyal customers, who instantly spread the word to their friends.

"It's an incredible opportunity," she said. "It's exciting to be part of the most trafficked destination on the Web next to Yahoo, according to comScore Networks.

Each MySpace profile page contains space in which businesses can post the print version of their ads or images as assigned, making sure the printed photos are easy to find.

When a beer fan has a Friday night party, for instance, they can send out an image of a promotional flier to all its friends, who then spread the word to their friends.

"It's like a virus," said Christina. "One person signs up, you have access to all the people that they're connected to.

MySpace has also been cleaning up its pages to make itself more attractive to squeamish advertisers turned off by the Dolly Python page, and I post pictures every once in a while. Whatever time allows me, I'll work on it," Frizzell said. "It kind of gives the store a little bit of personality."

MySpace has also been trying to develop more effective ways to let users search for companies on its pages. Those Internet titans have been trying to develop a Web version of word-of-mouth.
