Community Council of Idaho makes a difference

BY MARTEE ORTIZ
News Writer

The Idaho Migrant Council, which recently changed its name to the Community Council of Idaho, held the annual speech showcase on Tuesday, Nov. 14.

The Community Council of Idaho is a non-profit organization that helps migrant and seasonal farm workers in Idaho. It assists those families whose income is below the poverty level.

The showcase, organized by the Council, featured speeches from migrant and seasonal farm workers in Idaho. The presentations were held at the Multidisciplinary Building, Boise State University.

The Community Council of Idaho makes a difference in the lives of those who participate in its programs. They assist with education, training, and employment opportunities.

They work to improve the quality of life for those who participate in their programs. With the help of their supporters, they continue to make a difference every day.
The Iraqi Prime Minister said on Thursday that the discovery of 39 bodies through- out the capital eased back into a familiar rhythm of death, escape and sur- vival as Baghdad settled into Monday, "the new normal", that marked the end of the curfew that had been imposed last week.

Iraqi President Jalal Talabani, a Kurd, was believed to be among those killed.

Flu vaccination now available to students

BY MARTEE ORTIZ
New Writer

"Should I get a flu vaccination?" This question has come across almost everyone's mind at Boise State. Though some people debate and others think they have an amazing immune system, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommend that everyone invest in a flu vaccination every year.

Flu (also known as influenza) is a contagious respiratory illness which comes from the influenza virus. The severity can vary from mild to moderate to even death.

The CDC reports that the flu will infect 5% of the country’s population. Out of that percentage, 208,000 people will need professional care and 36,000 will die. Most of those who will not survive are elderly. Very young suffer from various health problems.

Flu symptoms include high fever, headache, muscle aches, dry cough, sore throat, stuffy or runny nose and extreme fatigue. Children, more commonly than adults, will experience nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

The influenza virus can cause exacerbations in other respiratory infections, bacterial pneumonia and worsening of existing medical conditions, including asthma and diabetes. The flu could also lead to heart failure.

This virus spreads person to person through the sneezing and coughing of people that are already infected. Others can pick up the virus by touching an infected object such as a doorknob, then touching their mouth or nose.

"The influenza virus spreads from people to people from sneezing and coughing, especially when you're on campus you're in contact with everybody," Primary Health Nurse Donna Ward said. "That's why we here at Primary Health advise that everybody get a flu shot."

The CDC recommends that anyone in search of a flu vaccination do so during the months of October and November. Although those months have passed, it would still be beneficial to get the vaccination. Since the flu does not really start attacking people until January or even later, two types of vaccinations will be available this year: the flu shot and the nasal spray flu vaccination. Pharmacists recommend the flu shot for children older than six months. The virus that we use is a killed virus so the side effects are transient like a sore arm bruise." Tom Piepmeyer, a Meridian Fred Meyer pharmacist, said.

The FluMist has a live, but weakened virus in it. Pharmacists recommend this for people ages five to 49, and recipients must not be pregnant.

After a person receives their vaccination, a two-week process will build antibodies that will help protect against the infection of the influenza virus.

The flu vaccination will only guard against the influenza virus; it will not protect against flu-like symptoms associated with non-influenza viruses.

Twelve states have already had some form of the flu. The CDC predicts that 36,000 people may die this year from complications of the influenza virus.

Don’t get stuck with the lump of coal

BY SHANNON MORGAN

During the holiday season many people turn to the Internet as a useful and time-saving alternative to traditional shopping. The World Wide Web offers a vast sea of retailers all vying for a chunk of your hard-earned holiday budget. However, honest retailers aren’t the only ones with their eyes on Santa’s Platinum Visa, there are those online who would love to secure a deal or two but still protect your money.

The Federal Trade Commission, the nation’s consumer protection agency, and the technology industry recently launched OnguardOnline, a campaign to help consumers integrate online safety into their daily online routines. Following a few of the tips I found on their website, www.onguard.com will minimize the chances of the Grinch paying a visit to your credit card statement.

Keep detailed records of your online transactions, including the product description and price, the online receipt and copies of any email you exchange with the seller. Thoroughly scour your credit card statements and be vigilant of finding fraudulent charges. Additionally, keep your credit card statements in a safe place to prevent identity theft.

If you make that big purchase, follow these popular tips to ensure that you don’t get stuck with the lump of coal.

- Confirm an online seller’s physical address and phone number. If a deal seems to good to be true, it most likely is. Check on The Better Business Bureau’s website like eBay to find or list online retailers you can trust.
- Make sure you know exactly who you’re dealing with; just because they have a website doesn’t mean they are legitimate. For more detailed list of the Federal Trade Commissions tips from The Better Business Bureau on how to shop online safely go to: http://www.bbb.org/advice/articledetail.cfm?ud=12477.
- Before you do end up paying cash to an online retailer or to sellers on auction bbb0lllin.e.org, visit to your credit card’s website to find out if they are legitimate. If you do end up having to return it, do you have to pay the shipping and is there a restocking fee? These are costly questions that are good to get cleared up before you make that big purchase.
- Holiday online shopping safety tips.

A few weeks ago Mike Esposito, es. the ASSE editor-in-chief, wrote a piece on his elk to write and publish an article in The Arbiter. He mentioned a couple of days after that, a person from the Idaho State University Network for Gay and Lesbian Elders wrote a letter to Esposito’s article for his comments. Esposito was a bit and felt the article that the student handbook was going to be used to fight against homophobia in the school. However, in a recent article by the student of the “out-of-the-closet” students that have to start and end with the word “gay.”

Several years ago, it was published in the majority opinions of The Idaho edenboard. Members of the board of education and college boards support the state’s health education curriculum. They support the state’s health education curriculum. They support the state’s health education curriculum.

It really is 'Visual Babble: A BFA Exhibit'

The "Visual Babble: BFAThesis Exhibitions" at the Visual Arts Center is currently displaying a variety of works in sculpture, photography, illustration, painting, graphic design, ceramics and metals. The exhibit will be displayed until Dec. 2.

A business ethics major, Karen Madura, Tammy Scott, Abby La Chance, Patricia Carothers, John Tower, Eric B. Moore and Cynthia (Cindy) A. Peterson. And every piece of art in the room is as interesting to contemplate as the next.

The next major artist statement, located on a small wooden podium in the center of the room, adds the question "What Do We Lean On?" and explains how he desired daughter and the Soul were his information for his carvings.

"The Garden," "Garden of Therapy," "Bread Staff," "Bread," and "Soul". His five pieces, sit in the middle of the room and in a closer to a cloum of art critics are discussing the meaning of each picture and people using the ideas of the artist to guide them through the gallery.

My friend L. Reynolds's "Bombshell Bitsy," photographs are interesting. She's cooking, she's cleaning, she's looking for, she's exercising, she's driving, breeding and burning.

There is bark and paintings among the rabbit, too. At the center of Cynthia (Cindy) A Peterson's ex- hibition includes two bark pieces breathtakingly, lifeless. The work is a mixture of sculpture, canvases and various other methods. "Bread Man Black and Collective Frustration." "Bread Man Black and Old Woman" are mounted on the wall, storing right back.

Due to the painting skills of Patricia Carothers and graphics skills of L. Reynolds we witness the creations of Karen Madura's concept drawings into the finished drawings. Tammy Scott's "Commemorations" including drawings as well as color do not show the flowers, a strip of ship is covered with images of highways me- morial crosses of people whose lost their lives in the middle of the street, crouch, down as if really there, against the dry landscapes across the country.

Low to the floor, making one cough, as if it really there, visiting the track.

Laguna Beach-Summer Can Last Forever
The album titled, "Laguna Beach-Summer Can Last Forever" was released Mar. 1, 2004.

Upon review of the CD's premiere, "Summer Can Last Forever" is highly contained to cannabis smoking and pipe smoking. Happy Days.

With the tracks of new songs and lyrics, this album is highly contained to cannabis smoking and pipe smoking. Happy Days.

There does not seem to be any true musical talent displayed in the songs which seems to be a common theme throughout the entire album.

Clearly listened to in the day, the airy tracks of actual dialogue from the TV show, listeners can be reminded of high points in the series with key phrases such as "That's really not really can't stop it in a large top and a small bottom." from the episode when the girls of Laguna Beach go shopping for bikinis. Little do the spectators or listeners know we have recorded enough background and colors high-voltage thrills. The rest of the time it is, ironically, forgettable.

Boise State finds BCS love

The Boise State football team will find out Sunday which Bowl Championship Series game it will be playing in.

By Brian Luptak
Sports Columnist

As the regular season of college football comes to an end, we are in a week that is often referred to as "BCS week." The top teams in the nation are vying for spots in the BCS Bowl games, which are considered the most prestigious bowl games in college football.

Boise State has had a successful season, finishing 12-0 and ranked #4 in the most recent BCS standings. The Broncos have won their last 12 games and have a shot at being one of the top teams in the nation.

Coach Petersen was named the National Coach of the Year, while quarterback Kellen Moore was named the Offensive Player of the Year. Boise State's defense was also recognized, with several players named to All-American teams.

The Boise State football team has been a model of consistency and hard work throughout the season, and they have earned their place in the BCS Bowl.

We will have to wait until Sunday to find out which bowl game Boise State will be playing in, but one thing is for sure: the Broncos are ready to show the nation what they are made of in the BCS Bowl.

To those who have crowned the University of Florida as the national champion, let us remind you that Florida is not the only team playing in the BCS Bowl. Michigan State, Wake Forest, and Louisville are also ready to prove that they are deserving of the BCS Bowl.

Boise State has earned its place in the BCS Bowl, and they will be looking to prove that they are one of the best teams in the nation. The Broncos have the talent, the experience, and the drive to compete with the top teams in the country.

Boise State football fans are ready for the BCS Bowl, and they will be cheering for their team to bring home the championship trophy.

The Boise State women's basketball team has been getting a lot of attention lately. The Broncos have been hot, but not for their basketball, but rather for a basketball game. On Tuesday night, Boise State played in the Oregon Shakespeare Festival's Hamlet, starring the Boise State women's basketball team.

The game was a sell-out, with fans flocking to the basket to watch the Broncos take on the Washington State Cougars. The Broncos came out on top, winning 71-68.

Matt Nelson leads the Broncos in scoring and rebounding this season. Nelson has been a key player for the Broncos, and has been particularly strong in the team's recent games. He scored 20 points in the win over Washington State, and has been named to the All-Big Sky Conference team.

Boise State is currently ranked 12th in the nation, and is looking to make a run in the NCAA Tournament. The Broncos are currently 15-2 in conference play, and are looking to secure a spot in the NCAA Tournament.

The Broncos are led by head coach Greg Graham, who has been with the team for several years. Graham has built a strong program, and the team is looking to make a run in the NCAA Tournament.
