President Kustra celebrates Boise State's accomplishments

Compiled by Arbiter staff

The March issue of Boise State’s newspaper, Arbeiter, recently featured an article about the accomplishments of various organizations at the university. Despite this recognition, the newspaper has been criticized for its handling of the situation.

Kunits and Sons of the Boise State Board of Regents recently mentioned in the newspaper for their accomplishments in their respective fields. According to the newspaper, Kunits and Sons of the Boise State Board of Regents have been very active in the university community and have made significant contributions to it.

However, the newspaper has also been criticized for its coverage of the situation. According to a recent article in the Boise State News, the newspaper has been criticized for its handling of the situation.

The newspaper has been accused of not providing adequate coverage of the situation, and of not being fair in its coverage. The newspaper has also been accused of not being transparent in its coverage and of not being accountable for its actions.

Australian David Hicks pleaded guilty here Friday to a terrorist conspiracy charge in a deal that lets him avoid going to military trials or international tribunals.

The agreement drew criticism from civil liberties and human rights attorneys monitoring the trial. They had sought Hicks' release in May and urged the military to make a deal to avoid putting him on trial.

Ace up his sleeve: "Alberto Gonzales’ nine new attorneys"

BY MICHAEL J. MCKEASY
Opinion Writer

Attorney General Alberto Gonzales has had a tough time late in the game. But not only did he have to make sure that attorneys who were "serving in the interest of the public" had also been able to explain in a congressional forum why there were so many confidentiality assurances on the nine minimal individuals. Just as he said consumers are "in tune with the fables, or engage with different tales, use of soy, phony sizes, or tendential liability. The most important thing is not to have a mind of limited thought, but to recognize, everyone who did not like the president’s view had been through an education. Dorm dwelling: a dare or a drag?

BY MATTHEW BOYLE

Culture Writer

College life can be characterized by the desire to learn or the pursuit of higher education and a better life. It can be both a challenge and an opportunity for growth. However, it is important to consider the time it takes to be living on campus.

The greatest number of college students are more concerned about the cost of tuition, books, and living expenses. Many students choose to live off-campus because it is more affordable and provides more freedom. However, it is important to balance the cost of living with the benefits of living on-campus.

Dorms can be a great way to meet new people and make friends. However, it is important to consider the cost of living in a dormitory and whether it is the right choice for you.

The experience of living in a dorm can vary greatly depending on the institution and the specific dorm. Some dorms are more rambunctious and noisy, while others are more quiet and peaceful.

Living in a dorm can be a unique and rewarding experience. However, it is important to consider the cost of living in a dormitory and whether it is the right choice for you.

The techniques are obviously a bit vague for me (I sell my jeans to record labels and film directors). But I agree with the concept, many of whom are just looking for an escape. In a sense, it's like breathing, something that is a part of our daily routine. The technique is simple: take a few deep breaths, close your eyes, and think about something positive.

Major league baseball's mid-season All-Star week Monday and we saw a lot of the game's top players, but a few were under the radar. The reason? Some of the biggest names were on the shelf or struggling for their teams. But with the All-Star break it allowed for players to get themselves right and re-energized for the second half of the season.

As a pitcher, Tim Lincecum of the San Francisco Giants has struggled in recent weeks. In his last three starts, he has allowed 10 runs in 16 innings. But with the break, he will have some time off to regroup and prepare for the second half of the season.

On the offensive side, Albert Pujols of the Los Angeles Angels has been hitting .247 with 10 home runs and 45 RBIs in 60 games. With the break, he will have some time off to work on his swing and look to improve his performance in the second half.

Overall, it's a good time for players to rest up, relax, and re-energize for the second half of the season.
Finding a quarterback: Part II

BY JAKE GARCIN
Sports Editor

Senior Taylor Tharp is competing to become the next Boise State starting QB after being the backup to Jared Zabransky since 2005. Tharp has played in 14 games as a backup.

Petersen mentors quarterbacks

Boise State Head Football Coach Chris Petersen is in charge of a quarterback competition. Petersen has mentors quarterbacks for the Broncos. In his second year at Boise State in 2000, Petersen mentors quarterbacks for Petersen to choose from, four seemingly different players in contention for the Broncos. "I think the one thing is, we have four people leading the offense," Petersen said. "There are four phases of the season that's more important than another. It's kind of a building block process. Spring ball leads into summer workouts. Those last two weeks are very important because we get to be with them for two weeks and then that's it for the rest of the spring."

All four competing quarterbacks (Taylor Tharp, Ryan Dinwiddie, Nick Lomax and Jared Zabransky) will continue to compete to win the job. "You just know that that's what comes out every week," Petersen said. "I've been through some difficult environments, having seen it. But right now I'm just trying to be that guy that comes out and it's immediate, does what they ask us to do and not make any mistakes."

"I've been through some difficult environments, having seen it. But right now I'm just trying to be that guy that comes out and it's immediate, does what they ask us to do and not make any mistakes."

At that point in the season, Petersen said the Broncos can't be with the players over the summer months until the team returns full camp in fall. "There's not a lot of weight on being pressed on home," Petersen said. "Those guys know what's expected of us. We're just trying to develop and compete." The main sentiment of all the quarterbacks is being led to play重要意义, to be the go-to guy in the competition and get ready for bigger and better opportunities.

Those last two weeks are very important because we get to be with them for two weeks and then that's it for the rest of the spring."

The race is still wide open with three players by the end of spring ball coming out any of the players over the summer months until the team returns full camp in fall. "That's pretty important because it's a new stage, a new players," Petersen said. "Somuch of the success..."
Michael Eldred leads the life of a lofty ordinary Boise State student. The 22-year-old judo master has simple academic dreams like other college students. He is in junior engineering and competes on a daily basis from Monday to Sunday on the BSU campus. One of his biggest achievements is not on average BSU student, however, he is a national judo champion and one day hopes to earn his black belt on the Olympic stage. March 25 Eldred won the Collegiate Judo National Championship at the Florida International University. Eldred overcame a field of 28 competitors to take home the collegiate judo crown. He defeated Takeshi Kusuda of Boise State in a triangle choke, "I'm pretty happy with that," Eldred said. "I worked hard this weekend. I think Marlon Douglas really has a great and strong technical game. He's tough, but I think we can get a win if we work hard this week."

In rare form the Boise State Track and Field team will appear in a dual meet with Idaho State Saturday. Breaking away from the traditional, multiple team track meets, the Broncos will host just the thought in a throw back event in Boise Stadium.

"It kind of a little bit old school," BSU Head Coach Mike Maynard said about the dual. "It's very common now as collegiate teams to have dual meets." But this weekend’s dual meet with Idaho State is just the beginning of bigger plans.

"One of the things that myself and the coach from Idaho State have been thinking about is doing a little bit different thing. I think both of us have been thinking about trying something different," Maynard said. "We would like maybe make this thing into national dual meet or foster an in-state rivalry type of format. Across the board, we're trying to do is to kind of create situations where we think we could get ready for the meets in May and June." As for this weekend, from a team standpoint, Maynard is looking for a couple key individuals to break out.

"There are people who are definitely ready to have a big meet," Maynard said. "One of the main guys, I think Marlon Douglas really has a great potential and I think that Chase Wacholder, in the 400 could make a big step forward this weekend." As for hitting being on pace to win state championships and make it out of the region, Maynard said, "It was kind of disappointing. We could have been a little bit more competitive as a team this year."

"It’s tough because I have to train and stress and train. But this weekend's dual meet with Idaho State is just the beginning of bigger plans."

"It kind of a little bit old school," BSU Head Coach Mike Maynard said about the dual. "It's very common now as collegiate teams to have dual meets." But this weekend’s dual meet with Idaho State is just the beginning of bigger plans.

"One of the things that myself and the coach from Idaho State have been thinking about is doing a little bit different thing. I think both of us have been thinking about trying something different," Maynard said. "We would like maybe make this thing into national dual meet or foster an in-state rivalry type of format. Across the board, we're trying to do is to kind of create situations where we think we could get ready for the meets in May and June." As for this weekend, from a team standpoint, Maynard is looking for a couple key individuals to break out.

Michael Eldred leads the life of a lofty ordinary Boise State student. The 22-year-old judo master has simple academic dreams like other college students. He is in junior engineering and competes on a daily basis from Monday to Sunday on the BSU campus. One of his biggest achievements is not on average BSU student, however, he is a national judo champion and one day hopes to earn his black belt on the Olympic stage. March 25 Eldred won the Collegiate Judo National Championship at the Florida International University. Eldred overcame a field of 28 competitors to take home the collegiate judo crown. He defeated Takeshi Kusuda of Boise State in a triangle choke, "I'm pretty happy with that," Eldred said. "I worked hard this weekend. I think Marlon Douglas really has a great and strong technical game. He's tough, but I think we can get a win if we work hard this week."
