Roundup, April 19

Associated Students of Boise Junior College
COEUR D'ALENE.-Mrs. E. F. Law, honorary president of the board of the Idaho Federation of Women's Clubs, announced Mrs. Roy J. Haga of Boise as the recipient of the 'Woman of the Year' award for 1940.

The award was presented by the board of governors of the federation, who cited Mrs. Haga for her outstanding contributions to the betterment of the city, county, and state. Mrs. Haga has been active in a variety of charitable and educational activities, and has been a strong advocate for women's rights and equal opportunities for women.

The award ceremony was held at the Idaho Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters, where Mrs. Haga was presented with a plaque and a bouquet of flowers. The event was attended by members of the federation, as well as state and local officials.

Mrs. Haga's contributions to the community include her work with the Boise Junior College, where she served as a trustee and a fundraiser. She has also been involved in various charitable organizations, including the Boys Town Foundation and the Salvation Army.

The federation cited Mrs. Haga's leadership and commitment to community service as the reasons for selecting her as the 'Woman of the Year'. The award is presented annually to a woman who has made significant contributions to the well-being of the community.

The ceremony was a celebration of Mrs. Haga's achievements and her dedication to improving the lives of others. The federation expressed its gratitude for her contributions and looks forward to continuing to work with her in the future.

History was made for B.J.C. as the cornerstone was laid on the new building March 20, 1940. The cornerstone, weighing 15,000 pounds, is a block of granite with the university's seal and the names of the colleges and their presidents inscribed on it. The cornerstone is a symbol of the university's commitment to education and its long-term vision for the future.

The cornerstone ceremony was attended by students, faculty, and members of the local community. The event was a momentous occasion for the university, as it marked the beginning of a new era of growth and expansion. The new building will provide additional space for classrooms, laboratories, and administrative offices, allowing the university to accommodate an increasing number of students.

The cornerstone ceremony was a fitting tribute to the university's history and its ongoing commitment to excellence in education. The cornerstone serves as a reminder of the university's past achievements and its promise for the future. It is a symbol of the university's enduring commitment to providing students with a quality education and preparing them for success in the world.

Spring Fever vs. Mid-term Exams

While events are moving with such rapidity in Europe, our chief national defense must be clear, broad-minded, thinking. If the United States is to function in this troubled world every citizen must think for himself, rather than leaving it to someone else. A national defense must be clear, broad-minded, thinking.

They Are Talking War Once More

By ROBERTA NERED

We must stop this thing, we must. For it is not, men, war which makes war. There would never be a war if it were left to women. The war is started by the men, forewarned or men.-

Armstrong Retains Title

Dick Armstrong, despite playing under the handicap of a badly injured hand, defended his T. M. C. class C handball championship successfully by defeating Ed Brown two out of three games. Armstrong was the aggressor throughout the match and Armstrong defeated every contestant in the class C below meeting each other. Armstrong was the only player in the tournament.

Baseball Delayed Year

With the renewal of track this spring the Junior College will put off baseball for another year. This won’t let the spirit of the game die down, for several enthusiasts of the game are forming a Junior Col- legiate independent team.

This team will be built around Bert Gregory, pitcher from Arkan-sas. Gregory is a southpaw and has previous experience on several good teams.
