Faculty to Provide Opportunity as Personal Advisors

Students of B. J. C. How would you like to have a 'faculty member' as your personal advisor? A person whom you would take your courses, troubles, and even your conversation out of? This service has been offered to the students informally this year, from a few of them have taken advantage of it. These faculty members are so many students and so many teachers that they are not ready to get them a time when both are have been too discouraging.

Now, however, a plan has been worked out whereby each student will be assigned to a faculty member as an advisor, and the plan for consultation could be similarly agreed upon between them.

The plan is in line with the progressive junior college scheme for four-year colleges brought the country, and is based on the fact that the students will seek the guidance of their advisors in the same manner as planning scheduled, adjusting class and work hours, seeking interest fields, adjusting general and social problems, which a student feels he must talk over with some one else. Experience might help to solve a student's problem.

Mr. Al Whitaker, a special student at B. J. C., recently spent a week in Boise in conference with a number of employees in his home town. The conference was arranged to help him plan the most beautiful present for the Boise Union, where Mr. Whitaker was honored by the town as the most beautiful present. Look for this.

Return Those Proofs; Shout Staff Members

"Darn," said Dee Anderson, Lois High and all other "Boise" staff members. Because students haven't taken their proofs back to the Burns studio.

"And, furthermore," said Associate Editor Lois, "if they don't get them back by Tuesday their pictures just won't be in the book. Every day they wait postpones publication a little bit longer.

Students," she concluded, "do you want to get your yearbook about Christmas?"

And so, says the "Boise" staff, get thoseraggedy old proofs back to the studio and be quick about it! Pull-ease.

Boiseans Enjoy Dramatic Play

"Dulcy" was a great show, say those who saw it. The picturesque style in which the play was presented went over with the audience. It threw an entirely different light on the play and gave everyone the feeling that they were sitting in a room watching not a show, but a conversation into which they might enter at any chosen moment.

Much credit is due Mr. Blackwelder, director of the play, for the effort he put forth on it, and also for the many additions he made to the play in general.

Large Audience Enjoy Austrian Musical Film

"The Orphans of Vienna," a two-hour feature picture recently shown by the language department of the Boise Junior College resulted in many favorable comments from the audience of over 100 persons who attended.

The show had a well-developed plot of how an orphan boy in Vienna finished a place in the famous boy's chair of Vienna. One of the interesting features of the picture to many of the people who attended was that the same child had given performances in Boise a few years ago and had been all tended by many of those present.

At the time it was considered the hit of the season of musical comedies, and the numbers and musical numbers with the picture were the same high standard.

In addition to the excellent quality of the picture as a feature show, scenes from the locations used by the movie company in its making gave the audience a real picture of life in a large European city as well as life in the Tyrolian Alps.

Freshmen Dance To Be Highlight of Week-End

"Blue Skies" To Be Theme

Promising to be one of the high-lights of this week-end's social whirl is the "Blue Skies" dance, which starts at 10 o'clock tonight at the Elk's. BUFFalo Gals, will provide a beautiful set for this all-school dance.

According to Jean Meredith, chairman of the dance committee, a fine program has been arranged. Such star performers as the trio of mollies, Helen Gann, Charlotte Gammianio, and Jean Abbey, are to turn in a few of their latest arrangements.

Miss Meredith said the entertainment will be good, and it will also be short.

George Gans and his orchestra will play the music. A large number of guests is well known in Boise dancing circles.

Admittance to the dance may be had by the presentation of the passes which are to be distributed among the students by the pre-tested committee, and all others shall be admitted provided a friend of a B. J. C. student.

Jeanette Gilmore and Pat Harra, co-chairman of the affair, have arranged the committee and class officers, Dean Howard in charge, and Kenny Berquist, have decreed the last two weeks to in- tense preparation for the class dance.

Gals and patrons will be parents of all fresh classes and members of the Junior College faculty, the committee announced.

Debaters Return From Tournament

Three Boise Junior College debaters and Coach D. D. Myers returned to Boise last Thursday afternoon from Linfield College in Oregon, where they had entered the National Debate tournament. The team missed the finals of the tournament by one defeat too many. They defeated four out of seven times.

They-two teams, representing 24 colleges from Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, were entered in the tournament. There were two divisions competed to 40 teams in the junior division and 42 teams in the senior division. The Boise team was entered in the junior division.

Boise was able to enter only one team because of the expenses. Betty Mathews, who was scheduled to make the trip, had to remain in Boise for the cost of the school play, "Dulcy." However, Mr. Myers stated that the competition was very tough. He also mentioned that if B. J. C. made the trip again it would be able to do much better.

Carnival Nets Profit

Boise College is Frontier to Youth

We often hear of frontiers that must be developed, and the common conception is the pioneer traveling the muddy sixty miles across the plains of the western United States. Strange as it may seem, there are many different kinds of frontiers that have been and are still being developed.

In the day by day life of the average student he does not stop to think that the voice training is as a frontier, and many obstacles to bring higher education to a greater number of people. Each day in the Boise Junior College has a material work of this frontier in the buildings that are now going up on the campus, and we see the mental work of this hearty education in the buildings that are now going up.

Each and every student is a member of a movement that may result some day in the bringing of higher education in the State of Idaho. Play your part in the movement well, reap the benefits this pioneer has made ready for harvest.

It's a shame there aren't more American colleges in Bulgaria to push more Germans in the nose.

Variety Show Could Stimulate School Spirit

Inasmuch as the school is the effective way at our disposal by which we may consider student problems as a group, may it be asserted that the Boise Junior College students have been given nothing that resembles a fair opportunity to share in this educational experiment.

I can understand that the penthouse style of production and the cost of production, limited the number who could see it. However, if dramatics at the college is to succeed in getting the student interested which it deserves and needs, it would seem that the student should be given first consideration in providing for an audience. Dramatics at the college have been hampered by a lack of facilities and enthusiasm. Surely, a more vigorous effort toward cultivating enthusiasm is not amiss.

Here is a suggestion. Why not open our new gym when it is ready for spring sport this year without using it, and instead of it, have a "Variety Show Type" program?

The program might be built around another popular song, and the program might be varied to suit the taste of the audience. Certainly we have the talent to provide it with an evening sparkling with brilliant variety.

We hear lamenting on every side about the lack of school spirit. Here is a suggestion. Why not open our new gym when it is ready for spring sport this year without using it, and instead of it, have a "Variety Show Type" program?

College Students Have Voice Recordings Made

You would never realize the number of good voices there are in Boise Junior College. It seems as though everyone in school has a pretty good voice and enjoys finding out just how his voice has improved.

At the end of the 1948-49 school year, Blackmon's speech classes have been playing them back to determine to find out just how his voice has improved. There they are. If you try to picture what they are like, you will see that the boys are really proud of themselves and if they are, it seems not without reason. When they are to be seen at a function, people say, "I heard you on the radio. How did you get that voice?"

Many of the students in D. A. Blackmon's speech classes have made recordings of their voices and are planning to use them playing back to determine to find out just how their voices have improved.

A road salesman returning from a particularly successful trip told his sales manager, "If I still want to make more territory, he can have mine."—Jayne Stinson.

Brones Beat Coyotes 46 to 31

Parente Takes Scoring Honor

Entering their first game as the under-rated team, Coach Harry Jacoby's orange-clad boys from Boise Junior College thoroughly defeated the College of Idaho Coyotes by a tune of 46 to 31.

The Broncs took the first count after four minutes of play and were never passed throughout the game. Darrell Parente, Junior College's chubby little guard, rode off with scoring honors for the evening with 22 counters, followed by big Hort Storey, B.J.C.'s star center, with 15 points.

The College of Idaho was led by Elder Dietrich, stoicky guard, who held Caldwell's hopes with his one-handed shots.

Until late in the game when again the Broncs turned on the power at full force, they gradually pulled away from the Coyotes, and as the final whistle blew, they found themselves the winner of the first night's game, and all ready to take on the Nampa Nazarenes at Nampa tonight.

The first game proved that the Broncs not only are going to be a threat in the Amateur Athletic Union tournament, but a strong one.

The line-up was:

Good Weather Forecast By Mysterious Student

A mysterious, furtive, masculine figure stole quickly along the sidewalk facing the north classroom of the University of Idaho, Southern Branch.

The student, identity unknown, was to all appearances attempting to pass some classroom at which he was supposed to be in attendance without being seen by his instructor.

Choir Will Represent Boise at Conference; Concert a Success

Due to the great success of a recent choir concert, the group will now have no financial worries, as they have made well over $400 and with this added appropriation given them by student body they have plans for their coming trip to the Northwest Music Conference. The conference will be a week long and will be sometime the last of next month in Spokane, Washington. Juniors and seniors in the high school, who attend the Northwest will be represented there.

Letters are now being sent to various schools along the way to secure appointments for performances. In this way the group hopes to propagate knowledge of Boise Junior College and further our relations with other schools in this district.

With any money that is left from the trip the choir plans to buy new collars for the girls. The ones they are wearing now look too much like a cowboy jacket, say the girls.
