Sleuth Reveals Traits Of Chronic Doodlers

Do you doodle? Do you draw little figures in margins, on tablecloths, on telephone pads? Well, regardless of what your answer is, chances are you do. If you do, I will italicize you. The writer of this column is an expert on doodlers, and her chief source of doodle data comes from her own kitchen desk and hidden places. She watched grocery store clerks scribbling on order pads, B.D. students scribbling during English class, women with waste-paper baskets and school books. No, unobserved, watching madly as she watched you. Here is where we find you: There are four main types of doodlers.

First and most common is the eschatological Chastelion, who draws his pictures from the American Duce Ticus. This group is made up of school-teachers, editors, their doodling lacks backbone and exhibits little or no sustained interest. A true Chastelion is recognized by the rather monotonous and formulaic pictures which are always on his pan.

The second clan is known as the "Gaumeticians". They specialize in the sleck, show-off type. A Gaumetician is highly skilled, and his doodles, while not significant, are very dear to him. A true member of this group will try in vain to save his sketches from revelations.

Next, and widely known by group two, is the Palliated or stage-hopping type. This doodler, like Hitler, the feeble-minded, is a member. While it is almost impossible for him to easily identify one by asking him what he is drawing, you may vary them to look up at you with bleaching, bloodshot eyes and a writhing mouth. They are often described, among students, as "the people who run around with mustaches and take such a walk with the V-s whiz."

And now we come to the fourth and final group, the "Pentameron" or true doodlers. In this group are many B. J. C. students. A Pentameron is a free spirit in every sense he or she is a doodler. In this group are the, for instance, the boy who, when asked what he is drawing, will say, "I don't know."

LOF'S LOVE CAKE

Take at least one date and out good.

Two smiles blended well with spice,

One person a with two cups of blood-red you.

Take two armfuls of a girl, wear who stays close to your heart.

Two of novels of emotion.

Two oases of squishing.

Bake in a young man's arms white sheet,

Take a car and roll up to your date.

Two tremulous smiles, a trace of a blush from your lover.

Stir 12 kisses well with proper spooning and serve on sofa.

Two cups of coffee.

"Righteous Commandments of Love." "D'it be taken or given with care?"

Then people in the city are out to run down, Life is not monotonous in a little town. One may not be too much, much, but nevertheless—things on balance.

Husband: "This is a remarkably good book. I've read the whole thing, out how stupendous in nature..."

Wife: "Yes, I tell you quite how lively and interesting it is!"

Wife: "A woman doesn't have in Wade through 400 pages to learn..."

Husband: "All men were made fools...

Wife: All men were made fool...

Mother: "Have a good time at the game, dear, and be a good girl."

Daughter: "Make up your mind, mother."

Two tremulous smiles, as if your lover.

The victory was wonderful, but even more wonderful was the support of some type should be continued, it only remains that editors of these columns, are the column editors to be allowed to remain anonymous? Since this is not the consensus of opinion that a gossip column of some type should be continued, it only remains that editors of these columns be given some assurance that their columns will be allowed to sign their articles to the bottom of the page. After all, columns are merely the expression of personal opinion, and the paper should not be criticized for what these columns express.
B.J.C. Wins Homecoming Game, 15-0

By Jack Radtke

Playing the highly rated All-Idaho Normal eleven in the 1939 game at Yakima, Coach Harry Jacoby's squad passed and plunged their way to the Bronco first victory of the season last Friday night, 15-0. This was homecoming game at Chaffee Stadium, and the Bronco junior college squad furnishing the crowd of 10,000 fans plenty of thrills, as it held the first team in the two-meeting series that a Bronco victory was desired.

Dick Burgener and Earl Cummings registered touchdowns for the Bronco team but the Albion boys had substantial muffed for their share of offensive triumphs.

First quarter meals playing the defense in a manner like a championship team, the Bronco team left this morning for the Lewiston Normal eleven in their annual football game tomorrow afternoon.

The Loggers' record for this year is unbeaten Lewiston Normal eleven has revealed a scoring system that had been lacking in their defense.

The Loggers meeting that a Bronco victory was to be homecoming game in fair shape. Coach Jacoby's new scoring combination is to be homecoming game in fair shape. Coach Jacoby's new scoring combination.

Bronco-Busters Isn't school spirit wonderful? It sure did wonders for the B.J.C. squad. The school turned out for an almost 100 per cent attendance and yelled the Bronco to victory for the first win this season and for the first successful conquest of the Albion squad in the history of the school. Everybody that saw the game was proud of our team and everybody, whether they saw the game or not, should be proud of them. They sure played a weighty and dullful game. The Bronco are really clicking now and they have more spirit that 'do or die' and spirit and feel that nothing will stop them, and it is up to us to see that . . . how they stop doing them.

Sophomores and members of the faculty have watched their broncos wreck their brains and tried to remember when B.J.C. had any more school spirit. Some observers say the same about Boise High and about Albion High and High. Perhaps the old town is waking up at last. Your columnist has several years of dead school spirit to look back upon and welcomes the change the upper men, we have a real athletic set-up and the Gonzaga are plenty willing to cooperate with us. What do you say to that? It's real good to cooperate with and to give the students of B.J.C. some school spirit in the upper man.

There is no forgetting the Gonzaga team. The army was well represented at the game the other night. One of these so-called representatives of the army hed the student body in a few yells. May be they were little more than the usual noise of the army were rather amusing. No sir, there is just no leaving them out. They don't give you better watch out, fellows, or else these representatives of Gonzaga will begin representing themselves.

Soft Drinks

When a 150-watt lamp costs only 20 cents, It's poor to use an inadequate-sized bulb from another lamp, to read by. And with electricity so cheap in Idaho, GOOD light is a must. Just one extra hour more per hour than poor, eye-staining-producing light. Check every light socket — fill the empties, re-fill with soft drinks lamp bulbs that give adequate light for SEEING.

Electricality. Did you know that...?

But Mary had a little lamp

How Do You Behave At a Carrot Party?

How to behave at a carrot party was the problem confronting the education department and especially Betty Mathews last week.

After visiting the school, Betty received an invitation to attend a carrot party. The etiquette book said nothing about carrot parties.

Betty went and found it a very ordinary little party the children gave for their mothers. Of course, carrots cut in fancy shapes were served for refreshments.

"Bug Hunters" Return With Frogs and Snakes

Approximately 45 ecology students have made two field trips within the past few weeks, according to Dale Arrey, instructor.

The students went "bug hunting" in Julia Davis Park and along the Boise River. Several frogs and a garter snake were among some of the animals brought back.

Economics Class Numbers Many

It is an interesting fact to note that the economics class in R.C. is the largest class in the entire school, with an enrollment of 76 students, according to Mer- ritt M. Nash, instructor.

In teaching this class, Mr. Nash presents to the students things that are taking place around them every day. This class discusses the war situation, world interests, and subjects that are intimately related to the students themselves.

Economics is a subject of vast importance and wide interest, because it may be called a class "Round Table" discussion, where each student takes part in discussing the everyday problems effecting himself, his fellow students, and the American public in general. or, in other words, through these discussions to learn more about our present method of "National Housekeeping" that concern them.

Brone-Busters

Brone-Busters have hit a new high after last Friday's football game between Coach Jacoby's Bobcats and the Lion squad at Chaffee Stadium. If you recall, the Bronco's were victorious of this season and by no narrow margin. They were really deserved to live up to their student body's registrations and give their opponents a tough time of it. To the surprise of the doubters our team rolled back the Albinsons for two touchdowns one point, and one safety. The score: 15-0. Not bad. It looks like we are starting to roll in our football schedule at last. But there is much lost in the future of our fall program. Coach Harry Jacoby has received his first call from the war department. The course of national events will decide whether or not he will have to leave the college in the next few weeks. It says that his orders might come by Wednesday of this week. That means we have four more games to be played without that expert coach who has been with our school so long.

"Coach, coach, we are going to miss you—all of us. You've become a tradition to us all. But we know you are in a good cause. Bobcats will be hard for him as they have for you. We'll be here to support the Jacoby fighting spirit you've installed in us. We know that the army's getting a good coach, we all wish you the best of luck."

There are over 40 picks for N. Y. A. work at Boise College which cannot be filled because of lack of funds, according to Gordon T. Olsen, bursar.

Most of the girls are doing clerical work and are office assistants.

The men are doing just as well aunder the supervision of Mr. Olsen, school custodian.
