I think January and February are hard months. It’s cold, often overcast, and sometimes precipitating. The holidays are over and, though we have a day in each month off, Martin Luther King Jr. Day and President’s Day are just not as festive as the December holiday celebrations. In January, we tend to become very busy very quickly with the return of students and faculty and, by February, we’re starting to prepare for the next fiscal year. During this time, it can be hard to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

This year I found myself with an additional challenge. Near the end of January, I adopted a dog from the Idaho Humane Society. I fell for Keisha hard and fast! As a seven year old black lab mix she loves to play, but is mellow when not actively engaged. And when she’s playing, she has a superb grin! I thought – and still think – that she’s the perfect temperament for my life: ready for hiking and playing, but also willing to relax and laze about my small home.

As those of you who have had adopted animals know, it’s a guessing game as to what their previous lives were like and their quirks will appear seemingly out of thin air. Keisha turned out to be what dog behaviorists call a “Velcro dog.” She’s very pack driven and she likes to be with her BSUAOP members and members of the campus community were treated to a presentation titled “Mary Hallock Foote: Novelist and Artist.” Idaho Humanities Council speaker Janet Worthington made Foote come alive as she delightfully recounted her life experiences all while wearing period costume.

Mary Hallock Foote was one of Boise’s most famous early residents. She is best known for her illustrated short stories, novels and illustrations. Her illustrations for such classic writers as Louisa May Alcott, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Nathaniel Hawthorne and Bret Harte, as well as her novels, demonstrate her talents for transporting her audience into her life in the old West.

When Mary was 17 she moved to New York City to pursue her dream of becoming an artist. As unusual as it was for a woman to have an education it was very unusual for a woman to have a career and be on her own. She met many wonderful and exciting people and loved the life that she had made in New York. Her talent and hard work was recognized and she was soon sought after for her work.

In 1876 she met and fell in love with Arthur Foote and as any good wife of the times would do followed him across the country to the West. She missed her friends and family in the East but did what she could to support her husband and growing family, literally. The family lived off of the money Mary earned selling her stories and illustrations while Arthur pursued his dreams of being an engineer.

Worthington, as Mary Hallock Foote, greeted each audience member as a long-lost friend and welcomed them as if she were inviting them into the parlor of her home located in what is now a small park next to the Lucky Peak Dam. The home was built from materials found in the Boise Canyon. The two foot-thick walls were made almost entirely of lava rocks. These walls kept the house toasty warm in the winter months and cool in the hot summer months.

FOCUS ON MEMBERS
Rossitta Fleming

Hello, my name is Rossitta Fleming. I was born and raised in Colombo, Sri Lanka. I speak three languages. I worked at the American Embassy and the United States AID Mission, where I met my husband, Scott Fleming, a US Marine. We have three children. All three of our children currently attend Boise State University. Being a military spouse, I worked in many different states and countries with people of diverse backgrounds and cultures. The experience enriched my life.

Currently, I work as an Administrative Assistant for the Early and Special Education Department. I have been at Boise State since 2002 and have over 10 years of experience in customer service--working with students and performing an array of administrative duties. I graduated from Boise State University with a Bachelor of Applied Science degree and a minor in Communication. Previously I earned an Associate of Applied Business from Marion Technical College, Ohio.

I enjoy spending time with family, travelling, reading, dancing, and playing tennis. I’m an active member of the Veterans Of Foreign War Ladies Auxiliary and volunteer at the Veteran’s Hospital and Food Bank. One of my goals is to complete my Master’s degree. I am excited to be a part of BSUAOP and look forward to it. Go Broncos!

Scholarship Deadline Extended for IAEOP Conference in April
By Danya Lusk

The annual Idaho Association of Educational Office Professionals (IAEOP) conference is in Boise at the Riverside Hotel on April 24-25 and I encourage all of you to attend. IAEOP is the statewide association with who Boise State AOP is affiliated.

Information about the conference and on-line registration can be found at: www.idahoaeop.org Click on Events and then Conference Information. The late registration fee has been waived until April 10th!

Registration for the conference is just $200 for both days which includes all materials, meals for the two days and membership to IAEOP. There is an optional activity on Friday afternoon that costs an extra $20. You can request financial support from your supervisor to attend this conference. Just print off the information from the website to show them the pertinent workshops that are being offered.

Boise State AOP also offers scholarships to help members attend professional development opportunities like IAEOP. We are fortunate to have a committed board and membership that helps raise funds so that we are able to offer that type of assistance.

Our own Leslie Black has been planning this year’s IAEOP conference and she will be installed as President of IAEOP at the Saturday luncheon. Also, Alexis Rowland, business manager for the College of Health Sciences, will be named the IAEOP Administrator of the Year award at the Friday night banquet. I am taking up a kitty for flowers for our Boise State colleagues. All my contact information is listed on page 2.

The conference is on a Friday and Saturday. Typically, with supervisor approval, Friday is considered a Professional Development Day and counted as a regular day worked and Saturday is your own contribution to your professional development.

This conference is a valuable professional development opportunity for an economical price! Check out the information and let me know if you have any questions.

http://orgs.boisestate.edu/bsuaop/
Want to be involved but don’t have the time for an ongoing commitment? Here’s your chance to help! We’ll be planning the “Create a Department Poster” contest over the summer. We’ll need to get a committee together, hash out some rules, possibly work with other groups on campus and figure out the prizes. Once fall hits we’ll need to advertise and get participants, judges and simply HAVE FUN!

And if you’d like to help out NOW—we’re looking for help planning our annual Bosses Breakfast. It’s always a blast.

Contact Danya Lusk, 426-1687, danyalusk@boisestate.edu, and let her know if you’re interested in becoming part of a committee.

likes to be with her human . . . all the time. Due to this personality trait and who knows what else in her past, I quickly learned that Keisha suffers from severe separation anxiety. She howled when I was away and succeeded in chewing at least one bar off her metal crate. She refused to eat any of the chew toys that I stuffed with food and left her until I returned home.

I enrolled in obedience training, discussing her behavior with the trainers, did some research on positive reinforcement training websites, and finally developed a treatment plan. I requested time away from the office so that I could find time to desensitize and counter condition Keisha’s phobia of being alone. February was hard. We started with Keisha being alone in one room of the house, while I was in another room. We built up from a few seconds, to a few minutes and finally to a half an hour. The training was tedious and frustrating when she’d whine pitifully and scratch at the door to join me on the other side of the door. She broke my heart with her behavior, but I stayed resolute to the training. When she became too anxious, I went back a few training steps and retried a shorter duration so that Keisha remained calm and comfortable being alone. I felt stuck, tethered to my dog. I felt like I’d never be able to go out of the house again by myself. The dreary Boise skies of February did not help much!

Today I am a proud “puppy” parent. Keisha completed basic obedience training with high marks and she can now stay alone in the house – sans anxiety – for 30 minutes. That may not seem like a lot, but it reflects huge progress in our work. She now devours the treats I leave her alone to track her progress and the only noise she makes, besides slurping up the treats, is an occasional bark to tell a squirrel to get out of her yard. She goes to doggy day care while I’m at work and we enjoy playing fetch and going for walks in the evenings after we return home. The day care staff shows Keisha that she can have fun with other humans. I can finally see the end of the tunnel where we’ll have a normal day where Keisha stays home and I can go to work or run errands as needed.
As I look around me today, with daffodils popping up, trees beginning to bud and bloom, and the now blue skies of Boise, I’m reminded how important hope and positive thinking can be for one’s mood, perseverance, dedication, and endeavors. Though I feel like I’ve re-entered the light, having been in a dark place, I realize that my dedication to Keisha and my perseverance in our training helped both of us survive our difficulties and work together.

I hope that each of you will search for the light in your life, take joy in the small things – like a flower blooming or a dog’s smile – and strengthen your will to persevere through the inevitable darker times that occur in our lives. I will attest that the former makes the latter a little easier and very worth it.

February’s Brown Bag Review
Healthy Heart, Healthy You
By Rene’ Delaney

Rhiannon Avery, adjunct professor at Boise State University, asked those that attended the brown bag lunch entitled Healthy Heart, Healthy You on February 10th if they thought more women die from heart problems or breast cancer. The answer was heart disease. One in four women die from heart disease compared to one in thirty one that will die from breast cancer. After menopause the numbers jump to one in three that a woman will die from heart disease. Another interesting fact was that more women than men die from “broken heart syndrome.” A woman is more likely to die after the loss of a child or spouse than a man is.

Rhiannon had recommendations for maintaining a healthier heart. Although most of these are common sense it was good for the group to be reminded.

- Obviously the earlier you start building good habits, the easier it is to continue and maintain them but it’s never too late to start. It doesn’t have to be a complete overhaul. Rhiannon suggested identifying one thing to change, taking it one day at a time to include the change then evaluate how that went and try it for another day. Continue with the process until its second nature. This process takes 27-32 days for a behavior change to become habit.
- Smoking harms every organ in the body, but particularly affects the heart by building up plaque in the heart and damages the structure of blood vessels. Try to stop smoking less if you can’t stop completely.
- Manage stress by having “me time”. Go for a walk, read a book or whatever it is that takes your mind off of the worries of the rest of the world. Even deep breathing can relieve stress.
- Rhiannon stressed that moving is one of the best things for your body. Walking 30 minutes 2-3 times a week is much better than not walking at all.
- Get plenty of sleep. Your body needs sleep to rejuvenate and relax.
- Remember that bad habits weren’t learned in a day so don’t give up if you have trouble trying to unlearn them in a day or two.

Boise State employee Alexis Rowland will receive the Idaho Association of Educational Office Professionals (IAEOP) Administrator of the Year award during the annual IAEOP conference on April 23 during the conference Awards Banquet Friday night.

Alexis is currently the business manager for the College of Health Sciences. She began at Boise State in the summer of 2007 as the management assistant for the School of Nursing. She worked previously at the University of California, Los Angeles for 17 years in various human resources positions including payroll, system support, training and special projects, and academic personnel manager.

Alexis is an advocate for staff, encouraging them to attend professional development activities and arranging for financial support for professional development opportunities. Administrators and staff alike consistently turn to Alexis for advice. Alexis earned the Boise State College of Health Sciences Excellence in Staff Service Award in 2010 for her outstanding service to the college.

“The College of Health Sciences has experienced tremendous growth in the past five years which has benefited Boise State students, regional health professionals and the state of Idaho. Many hard working people have been involved with the work that has been necessary to be successful in this endeavor. Alexis Rowland has been critical in this effort,” states Tim Dunnagan, dean of the College of Health Sciences. “She does her work with a positive attitude and a wonderful demeanor. Employees such as Alexis are the reason why the College of Health Sciences is successful. She is to be commended for her contributions.”

Congratulations Alexis!
IAEOP Conference—April 23-25, 2015—Boise—Riverside Hotel

Think conferences are boring, not worthwhile, or "fluff"? Well, you haven't been to an IAEOP conference! Check out these award winning Boise State faculty who will be presenting at the Idaho Association of Educational Office Professionals conference in April:

Heidi Reeder Ph.D. is the author of Commit to Win: How to Harness the Four Elements of Commitment to Reach Your Goals (Hudson Street Press/Penguin) and an associate professor at Boise State University. She is also a Carnegie Foundation Idaho Professor of the Year. She blogs for Psychology Today and has been featured on Life and Style and The Today Show. Reeder has authored articles for leading communication and social psychology journals and provides keynotes and workshops for professional organizations, including Citi Credit Cards, the Wyakin Warrior Foundation, Bank of the Cascades, and DirectTV. As the owner of SuccessTracks, Reeder’s mission is to help teams and individuals communicate with confidence and authenticity and to maximize their personal and professional success. Heidi will be facilitating a general session workshop on "How to Say No."

Dr. Cynthia (Cindy) Clark is an award winning professor in the School of Nursing at Boise State University and the Founder of Civility Matters®. She is the recipient of numerous teaching, research, and service awards including the 2011 and 2012 Most Inspirational Professor Award, the 2011 National League for Nursing Excellence in Educational Research Award, the 2013 Journal of Nursing Education (JNE) Christine A. Tanner Scholarly Writing Award, and the 2013 Boise State College of Health Science Excellence in Research Award. Her book, Creating and Sustaining Civility in Nursing Education, received the 2013 American Journal of Nursing Book of the Year award for Professional Issues in Nursing—a must read for all educators and practitioners. Cindy has a web page at this address: Civility Matters. Cindy will be facilitating a workshop option "Creating Healthy Workplaces Powered by Civility and Teamwork".

Additionally there will be workshops on personal finance, smart phone "smarts", getting the most out of Google Apps, and a couple of keynote speakers - one a nationally renowned storyteller. This conference is for anyone who works in an educational office so plan to attend and invite a co-worker to come with you.

The conference is April 24th and 25th at the Riverside Hotel in Boise. Registration is only $175 for two days of professional development. Room rates are very reasonable at $83 per night (+applicable taxes). You can't get a better bargain anywhere! Come see what it is all about and get a new mind set about conferences. This one will be AWESOME!

Professional Standards Program

The Professional Standards Program (PSP) is a voluntary program established by the National Association of Education Office Professionals (NAEOP) to encourage education office professionals to grow professionally. The privilege of participation is open to active and retired members only.

The program is designed as a series of five levels in Option I and nine levels in Option II. The awarding of a certificate based on education, experience and professional activity recognizes each level of achievement in the program. The current highest-level certificate must be recertified five years from issue date or upgraded according to the guidelines to be considered current by NAEOP.

A member who holds the Advanced III, Option I, or Associate Degree or higher under Option II is qualified to apply for the distinction of Certified Education Office Employee (CEOE).

The program is governed by the Professional Standards Program governing body, referred to as the Governing Board. The PSP Committee makes recommendations to the Governing Board. The final decision is made by the NAEOP Board of Directors.

If interested in obtaining your PSP certificate, here is some useful information:

* Keep track of all training you receive either on or off campus (Training Record Template)

* Get a copy of your unofficial transcript to verify your education credits

* Make copies of all certificates of training (make sure you get a certificate at each training you attend)

* Keep track of all your membership/volunteer work in BSUAOP, IAEOP, and NAEOP (10 points are needed for PSP applicants)

Membership = 1 point per year
Elected Officer = 2 points per year
Committee Chair = 2 points per year
Committee Member = 1 point per year
Workshop/Seminar leader or keynote speaker = 1 point per presentation

For complete requirements, request a PSP book from NAEOP, PO Box 12619, Wichita, KS, 67277-2619 or go to the pspbook from the Boise State AOP website.

PSP ENDORSEMENTS

The PSP Program is endorsed by:
* The American Association of School Administrators
* The American Association for Public Continuing and Adult Education
* The Association of School Business Officials
