Employment and Job Placement Opportunities At Boise Junior College

The days of men of Boise Juniors leaving the College and heading for other places are over. Now the College spends more time in helping the students in their work in the hope of making them a success in their work. About 40% of the students graduate in the work program which helps them in finding their way through the world. Many of the business men gain valuable help in the career of their choice by the employment of Boise Juniors. At times a student may be able to help the students through his educational program and find a job. The student offers to work in the field for which he is trained and is interested in working. He may also be interested in the field of women's clothing and the different kinds of jobs available. The students are encouraged to get a job in the field they have graduated from. If they want to work in a field other than the one they have graduated from, they may take it up after graduation."

The Bill Jones orchestra is furnishing the music and Lila Johnson will sing the theme song. Dancing will be from 9 to 11 in the Student Union ballroom.

As an annual affair it is girls-only, boys may obtain their tickets Monday through Friday in the front hall of the Administration Building. The price is 40 cents per couple.

Draper's

A wildly-milling crowd number into the doors cheered madly last week as a handsome young prize worker bid his job goodbye, and off to rise to his kingdom.

The marriage of Prince Parish and Miss Cadeck was celebrated over the weekend. The couple, who met in the course of intense interview in which Miss Hardyman was called, later eloped with presents from the wealthy young prince. The couple then revised the gifts which, with all the after-dress of both sides, was estimated at not less than $500.

Reported to have been present at the event was Mr. Paris Hardyman, and otherwise, "At least I'm more than his son-in-law..."

As newspaper editors and publishers, all speakers of the press mentioned the fact that the couple is the most likely one to "catch the eye" of a young girl. The picture, when taken by the dailies, was described as "a real good girl".

"In addition," he continued, "she should make a good friend for him."

The couple left for a few days to spend their honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands on the second Sunday.

Local Yokel Makes Good

The story of the success of Mr. Parish Hardyman, Jr., is followed by many as an example of how a man can succeed, even if he is born in a local yokel family.

Mr. Parish Hardyman, Jr., was born in the small town of Ralegno, long ago.

Finally, he graduated to a $100,000 guitar, Wallgreen special.

The success story was followed by the local yokel family and decided to tell the world of his outstanding agency in his own way. He stumbled into a small re from that moment on his blooming and continued to do so for a brief period after Grace recovered from her recent illness.

Although the wedding ceremony went off without a hitch, the young couple was not only happy when they left the church, but also when they stepped out of the church and into the waiting car. Miss Hardyman was said to be smiling from ear to ear.

Photographed was the happy couple to the surprise of many. A spontaneous show from the crowd was seen, as some gifts were given to the happy couple, and others, to the happy guests. The newlyweds arrived home on the second Sunday.

The wedding was operated by the wedding agency.

In addition, the agency that handled the wedding, was able to sell a very good wedding dress, and other wedding outfits for the couple.

The newlyweds are now making plans for a trip to the Hawaiian Islands on the second Sunday.

French and Spanish Clubs Wash Cars

The French and Spanish clubs turned out over 200 cars for the wash on Saturday, April 19th, for the club sponsored wash at the student union parking lot.

The Wash was held in the Student Union parking lot, and the students of the French and Spanish clubs made these cars examples out of the ordinary, as their cars were very clean and shiny.

Made with the Flanagan Flair

Billboard magazine, in its 1950 poll of disc jockeys, found that Ralph Flanagan's album of Rodgers and Hammerstein songs was the most popular of the year. The first set of six Rodgers and Hammerstein melodies by Flanagan was a part of RCA Victor's initial "design for framing" series - a series which contained the music of bands that had been established names for ten and more years.

The fact that Flanagan's orchestra was not even a year old when his album was issued made his billboard victory twice as impressive.

Ralph has played score of dates. With his group they made their first appearance in California. His band packed more people into the Palladium than that disc parlor had ever held. His band has been voted the favorite of listeners and to prominent disc jockeys all over the country; college students have named him their number one choice in campus polls.

And from all this, Ralph learned still a wider knowledge of what America likes to dance to.

Flanagan was in the midst of a successful tour through the east and midwest when he was asked the selection of his Victor. Each was tested at various ballrooms in the Midwest, for a week before the recording date. The tempo on each tune is the result of extensive musical research by Flanagan into the exact rhythm expressed by the listener as Flanagan puts it, "We can play every tune on the hit parade and all sorts of other selections, but every time we go into a Roxbury and Hammerstein tune with the band I get an almost electrifying wave of enthusiasm from the dancers. In fact I can almost see where they are dancing to Rodgers and Hammerstein tunes more than any type of instrumental we play.

And yet the words, "these music are gymnastics with the words," "Ralph Flanagan," this album is profoundly key for dancing the south and the north. We must treat with the patience through the south as segregation is going to be a long and difficult job.

Center stage of the rigid ban on Negroes, Ruby Walton and Negro Scott were a part of the "south" and the negro. By the same token, Joe Scott was a part of the "north" and the negro. Joe Scott is a world-famous dancer by the way.

Next on the agenda for the debate team will be a debate demonstration at the Copa Kinema Club Thursday noon.

Ricks Next Diamond Foe At Shoshone

Trouble with a capital T is expected this weekend at Shoshone as Boise meets one of its toughest baseball foes of the season, Ricks. A doubleheader is on tap for the Shoshone ballfield and a loss here could knock the Broncos out of contention for the northern division championship.

Not much is known about Ricks' lineup or what抵抗 anything has been breaking up to date in this region, but Ricks is expected to have a good team and the Broncos will have a fight on their hands.
