Freshman Students Go to the Polls; Elect Officers for Busy Year Ahead

Tomorrow is election day for freshman class officers. The polls will be open all day from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The election activities began last week as freshmen wishing to hold office circulated their petitions. Freshman on petition was last Wednesday afternoon. Wednesday-night, campaign posters began appearing around the campus.

A total of 12 petitions were received in the Student Affair office. Merion Master, Pat Hayes andpatial Merritt petitioned for president. Carol Smolik was the only student for vice president. Barbara McRae and Patsy Underhill petitioned for treasurer. These for representative were: Judith S.

Patricia Smolik, Mary U. Parson, Miss. Alice Williams and Tony Latz.

All three petitioned presidential candidates are graduates of Ross high school.

Merion is a business major. He plans to attend the University of Washington after graduating from Ross. Master was quoted as saying, "My main purpose for running for this office is to create closer ties between students living on the campus and those who live off the campus. I think that we have a wonderful freshman class and if I am elected, I shall do my best to make it even better."

Pat Merritt is a debate student and a major in law. He intends to attend the University of Oregon after leaving Ross. He is quoted as saying, "If I am elected president, the freshman class will have better representation in the Student Council and I will strive for a more active campus society."

Pat Hayes is a journalism major. His plans are to attend the University of Oregon after graduating from Ross. Hayes had the following to say about his campaign, "I don't think I want to make any campaign promises. I believe in crossing the bridge when you come to it."

In connection with the election, a freshman assembly was held this morning. Nominations for class officers were called for. Anyone wishing to nominate a student which had not been petitioned was asked to do so at this time. The assembly also included election speeches. Each candidate was called upon to give a campaign speech of two or three minutes.

Homecoming Plans Are Well Underway

Darrell Hansen, general chairman for the homecoming committee, said the homecoming will be held Saturday, November 12. The homecoming celebration will also feature the Miss Homecoming contest, the Homecoming Band, and the Homecoming Dance.

The theme for the homecoming week was "College Life." Hansen feels this year will exemplify the sporting spirit of the "Gay 20's," appreciation, education, and the marvelous memories of college life.

The L.C.'s will sponsor their annual "Battle of the Bands," a musical competition to see which group can best represent the college.

There will be a homecoming parade, a "College Life" theme night, and a homecoming picnic on the campus. Tickets for the parade will be available starting Monday at the homecoming office.

Jazz Series to Begin In Near Future

The presentation of a series of jazz concerts was announced and opened by the student council at a meeting held last Tuesday morning.

The series is to be sponsored by the BJC Roundup. The concerts will be held every Friday afternoon at 10:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Following this date, concerts have been planned to be held every Friday afternoon. The results of the series will be published in the BJC, school newspaper.

Effective Wednesday morning, October 24th, students who violate parking regulations on the Ross campus will be fined.

It has been pointed out in the past that these parking restrictions are for safety and fire protection. At this time there has not been full cooperation and the enforcement teams especially have been closed with cars. Tickets will be issued for this reason.

Homecoming plans have been announced for this year.

IN OUR OPINION...

Let's face it, the BMC parking area is just too small to handle the number of students going here now. But the biggest problem, by far, is parking. The Feese police have a bag-day student ticket on students, cars parked overnight, and otherwise impeding places. We understand the parking crew has arranged the entire parking lot and no parking areas on campus so there can only be few excuses for parking in a safe area. But we do feel that there aren't enough parking spots. The very next city park shores around the Student Union is a wonder land, yet are not shown in some. This situation persists not only to those students but others as well. Many times we notice one or two cars parked in the middle of the parking area, making it just that much harder for other students.

Look at this a way. What if a fine was an ambulance to that took time away from class? The wheel and other things are all done in flutes, before we were turned out the spot without the men of cars.

We've already had two incidents because of the lack of separation in the parking area and if the situation isn't handled immediately, we could have more.

Y ou CAN'T VOTE UNLESS YOU'RE REGISTERED has been poured into the bowl of the American public for a while, but it doesn't seem to fit BMC campus, nor do we do any surveys over many of the students think as we. We understand only one-third of the eligible students vote and those who do seem to be the most vocal. A few good student and their candidate didn't get elected for what all of them we do believe in work on hand in the WAC, we are against voting and in some of these elections, citizens are required to vote. We are going to the number of students. We would like to see a bigger interest in voting around BMC campus, but it doesn't matter how, but get out and vote.

It was brought up by some of the students, working the Horizons game, that it might not be as bad as the other students feel. We don't have to be any different, but the display put on of the Fitch Fresh game by about $100 didn't please everyone. One of the best parts of the Fitch Fresh was the job done by the students. Although we realize there is a drive and the students who would like to get a job to show their talents. The students have a good time and the opportunity for another to stand and show off to the right. We would like to see a bigger interest in voting and in the WAC, we are against voting and in some of these elections, citizens are required to vote. We are going to the number of students. We would like to see a bigger interest in voting around BMC campus, but it doesn't matter how, but get out and vote.

See up the enthusiasm, but don't make it obvious.

We can sing up the hard on their playing but decline to comment on their ability to play at the same time. This is one of the biggest problems. We need to improve the students who are playing. The students who are playing are not always from the same school. They are usually from the same school, and they usually know a little more about what is being played. We hope they will continue to improve.

We do not have to discuss this further, but because the amount of students who are playing, and because of the lack of enthusiasm, but don't make it obvious.

Correction

According to an article in this week's edition of The Norman Lewis' (Teacher of the Workers to the Students) Mr. Lewis' name was omitted from and omitted by the C of I was in error. He graduated from the University of Idaho and taught at the Colville High School. He also graduated from the Malad high school in 1910, read the history of his ancestors, and to Mr. Lewis for these errors.

FRESHMEN: Even If You Can't Vo
Student of the Week

An active girl on the campus, Inez Eliegnrah is in her final year here at the college. An education major, she is very busy with extracurricular activities in addition to her regular classes.

Inez has been a resident of Boise since she was 13, when her family moved here from Arizona. Prior to that time she had lived in Fij, Nevada, and in Goodee, Idaho, where she was born August 30, 1917. After moving to Boise, she attended North Junior High and Boise High school.

Besides her part time job at XBOJ as a receptionist and switchboard operator, her extracurricular activities include rifle marksmanship (she was manager of the Boise high girls rifle team) and swimming. Another phase of her school activities is that of serving as a member of the local Intercollegiate Knights service club. She was elected to this office last year. This year she plans to get a job teaching at one of Boise's elementary grade schools.

Inez likes JBC very much, because her best friend is small and friendly and she gets a much better chance to improve herself with the college girls than they please. Also if you get a chance to meet as many people as you wish.

Wenatchee College Knocks out Title Leak in the Washington JC conference as they rolled over Yakima two weeks ago, 32-12 for their third conference win. Yakima, who had high hopes of taking home a win before Saturday, was put out of comfort by the Vikings of Everett, who chipped up their second conference win by slapping a weak Central 7-6. In a close game, Grays Harbor bounced back from its Yakima defeat with a 26-14 win over Lower Columbia 21-14 while Olympic handed huge losses Columbia Basin from a 14-0 loss. This past weekend Everett was scheduled to take on Wenatchee but took a Second conference win with a 26-14 victory over Oregon Tech. Southern Oregon claimed its second victory by handing the Villagers of Portland State a 19-6 setback. Cowley College captured the win and the Cow-Coy Collegiate title with a 22-14 win over Oregon Tech on Tuesday afternoon.

Three ICAC Games Scheduled Friday

This coming weekend features the Oregon PUMC Conference, taking an off-year approach with Carbon as the only member playing football. The Golden Eagles, who have won only one game, are new to the Collegiate Conference, Antelope Valley.

Bart Bynum back to the road and will visit the Oregon State University team at Oregon State College as the game of the week. Bynum, who has long been a favorite for the Redskins, will face off against the Oregon team in a tight battle.

Boise-CSU Broncos Meet At Cedar City
This Saturday In Conference Play

Coach Jim Smith will lead the Broncos into conference play this week. In their first conference game, they head to Cedar City, Utah, to play the Driscoll Raiders. The Broncos, who are 2-0 on the season, have already defeated the University of Oregon and have faced some tough opponents. The Driscoll Raiders, on the other hand, are 1-1 and have been playing well in conference play. This will be a critical game for both teams as the Broncos look to maintain their early-season momentum.

Boise State's intramural football team opened its first season with a 13-6 victory over the 69ers. The game was played on the university's campus.

"I Feel Like a Coca-Cola"

"Do you?"

Of course, most everyone does. Coca-Cola has become a household drink. The key factor in its success is its marketing strategy of making it a product for everyone, everywhere. This has helped it establish itself as a cultural icon, and has led to its widespread popularity. Its marketing campaign has also been successful in creating a sense of nostalgia and tradition around the brand. It's a classic example of how a product can become a cultural phenomenon, and it's something that every company should strive for.
