THE ART OF THINKING...

What is the primary achievement of a well-rounded college education? It seems that this could be answered in a few short words. A college education should teach every student to th

k. This sounds ridiculously simple, but, as the philosopher, George Friedman has said, "What is actually a thought may often be misunderstood, a great discovery, because we have never paused to ask whether the thinking of which the brain requires..." The very process is what makes a person think, and the ability to think clearly is what makes every man and woman a human being.

And this is how the art of learning to think, obviously a great subject, is taught in every college course, and is much better in theory. But the answer to this question is that the college student must learn to think in every course and in every subject. And the answer to the question: "Who in this country has thought for the country which has so often thought for itself?" is: The college student.

In many ways there is nothing in this type of college education which is not a necessity, since the typical course is designed to provide the foundation for the life which the student wishes to lead after graduation. The college education should teach every student to think, which the student requires to be able to lead a life of his own choice.

There's A Story In Famous Faces

Do your facial expressions reveal your character? The ancient Greeks believed they could tell a person's personality, emotions, and intelligence by their facial features. However, there's much more to facial expression than just the shape of the face. Each feature plays a role in conveying emotions and intentions.

In the case of historical figures, their facial expressions can tell us a lot about their personalities and the time period in which they lived. For example, the famous American President Thomas Jefferson is often depicted with a serious expression, suggesting his intellectual and scholarly nature.

Last week Mr. Bonnell helped the Plant City club with their week by speaking at their luncheon, on the theme of "Science and Life."

He drew historical parallels between these two arts, showing that technology cannot develop without a strong national organization and that pure science cannot flourish except in a climate of individual freedom and dignity. This week for Bonnells papers have been submitted to the high school scholarship society on "The Industrial Savage."

The following week we will have the same program and chairman of the high school scholarship society.
