Master's program may be renamed

by Bonnie Dibble
The University News

One of BSU's Master's degrees could be renamed which would better serve more students, according to Dr. Charles Davis, chairman of the English Department. Presently, English is one emphasis available in the Master of Arts in Education degree, and teacher certification is necessary to complete the degree.

A new Master of Arts in English degree would retain the same requirements while allowing more people to use the program, Davis said. The current Master's program was initiated in 1974, Davis said, when the colleges of Education and of Arts and Science developed the Master of Arts in Education as an interdisciplinary degree. "That program served us well," he said.

Davis said the program will remain committed to area teachers.

The degree can still be shaped to meet the needs of an education major. However, teacher certification will not be required for English majors.

The College of Education supports the degree change, he said. The proposal is ready to go to the State Board of Education for approval, and Davis said he hopes the change would go into effect for the fall of 1988.

Catalog changes would not occur until the following year. Some students have begun graduate studies in English in the anticipation of this degree, Davis said.

BSU serves a "uniquely BSU population" he said, referring to the non-traditional students, "people who had a degree years ago," and want to continue their education without leaving the area. He said that most graduate courses are offered at night "just to serve that population."

Students support candidates, organize campus campaigns

by Steve E. Lyon
The University News

Although the Republican and Democratic national conventions are months down the road, BSU students are gearing up their political organizations to support their party and candidates.

BSU has both Democratic and Republican clubs.

At this point in time—will early in the candidate selection process—the BSU College Republicans are not doing any campaigning for individual presidential or state Republican candidates, club president Sonye Walker said. The club will not endorse a Republican presidential candidate until one is chosen at the national convention.

Instead, the club is scheduled to bring in Republican candidates to speak, starting with a representative from Sen. Robert Dole's campaign. Some students have begun attending BSU College Republicans meetings.

The College Democrats meet every other Tuesday in the Student Union Lookout Room at 3 p.m. and members are hoping to have the charter approved soon.

The College Democrats met every other Tuesday in the Student Union at 3:15 p.m. Karen Scheffer, president of the College Democrats, said at this point everyone in the club is supporting their favorite presidential candidate, from Gephardt to Jackson to Dukakis.

Scheffer said that club plans include meeting with the Ada County Democratic Caucus, which is scheduled to take place at BSU on March 8. Democratic county delegates will be chosen at the caucus, and these delegates will represent the county at the state convention in Pocatello.

The club was formerly called the College Young Democrats, but that organization failed to maintain its status at BSU. A constitution was written for the new club over Christmas break, Scheffer said, and club members are hoping to have the charter approved soon.

Other club plans include bringing in speakers. Rep. Richard Stallings is scheduled to address the group this spring.

Done by semester's end

Court project will soon begin

by Jim Chivers
The University News

Construction of new volleyball and basketball courts is planned to begin soon, according to ASBSU President Perry Waddell. Waddell said that the new courts are expected to be completed before the end of the semester, adding that the courts and related equipment will cost approximately $17,000.

Waddell said that one of the basketball courts will be located in the circle drive next to the towers with the other near the stadium. He said that putting the basketball courts in paved areas will reduce construction costs. The two volleyball courts will be located north of the tennis courts by the Pavilion, he said. Students will be able to check out equipment from the Pavilion office and possibly from the Outdoor Recreation Center in the Student Union. The courts will be available for open play during the day.

Waddell said that the placement of the volleyball courts had been carefully planned to not interfere with university expansion plans. Of those plans, Waddell said, the plan to enclose the tennis courts created the greatest problem.

BSU President John Keiser approved the plans and matched ASBSU's $8,500 for the courts, allowing construction to begin, Waddell said.

ASBSU says BSU shortchanged under current funding scheme

by Steve F. Lyon
The University News

In a letter distributed by ASBSU to members of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, state legislators, State Board of Education members and the media, ASBSU states the position that BSU, as compared to U of I and ISU, is funded unfairly.

The letter, dated Feb. 12, says that BSU is the victim "of an unbalanced allocation formula."

According to ASBSU, "BSU is not out to steal $1.3 million from the U of I, or any other of our sister institutions. We only want to insure that the funding inequities of recent years are not perpetuated."

ASBSU says in the letter that BSU, the largest university in the state, has the highest student/faculty ratio of any institution in the state and the second-highest percentage of part-time faculty next to LCSC.

"BSU has been able to continue its growth and expansion largely due to the generosity of Boise's business community, but the private sector now believes it is time for the state to lend a hand," the letter states.

ASBSU says there were problems with the old distribution formula, which currently is being altered by the SBOE to alleviate the perceived funding inequities.

The letter states that in reviewing the old formula, the SBOE discovered further inequities between BSU and ISU and the U of I.

"U of I and ISU used a questionable accounting procedure to charge both the state and EG&G, Inc., an eastern Idaho research firm, for courses taught to EG&G employees. ASBSU says that if factors had been applied correctly last year, BSU would have received $1.1 million more. As it was, U of I was given a $1.3 million gift.

They also say that an additional $1 million could allow BSU to upgrade some faculty positions from part- to full-time, ease crowded classrooms, or upgrade programs.

Keiser’s ‘Vanishing Majority’

We are concerned. In the latest issue of BSU’s PCUS magazine, university president John Keiser wrote an essay, “The Vanishing Majority,” which says that as Americans we all should adopt national goals in order to promote a united mor-ality, his view of the intention of the Constitution and the Declaration of In-dependence. He believes that the country has dissolved into “self-conscious groups,” which have crippled Americans to the point where they are the country’s foundering right from wrong. This, according to Keiser, is because we have adopted a cultural relativist position, and since many different groups perceive of what is correct or incorrect, the result is a lack of making of critical decisions.

With his call to return to the original intent of the founders of the country, however, he fails to recognize that the people of the United States have rarely had a “common ground for unity.” The mere fact that people are educated in a variety of views, where one is not portrayed as being more correct than another, does not mean that we throw up our arms in defeat; rather, it means that individuals will be forced to reason their views, that they will have to think, as opposed to being spoon fed some notion of correctness.

Keiser’s view is that having to “substitute so-called ‘values’ and ‘commitment,’ subject to negotiation, for what was once phrased in terms of good and evil,” makes it impossible to “set priorities or make critical judgments.” This is simply incorrect. There is no call for decision, thought or insight in the system of absolutes called for by Keiser. One need not think in his world, only agree with the “informed majority,” of which he is a part of the latter. When only an unquestioning majority has the power to contribute in a society, oppression results. The open debate over fundamental ideas is healthy, and the knowledge and understanding which are produced are of inestimable value.

If democracy is to work, it requires much of its citizens. They must think and be able to express their conclusions. The founders of this country were concerned with this issue of conflicting views and it is why the Constitution and the Bill of Rights are geared toward protecting minority rights from the power of the majority. We think that the open discussion and debate of minority ideas is critical to our existence as a democracy. For that matter, that is why we have an opinion page.

The foundation of western thought is reason. This is central to virtually every major work dealing with what it is to be a human living in a universe, however conceived. It is what reasons to study anything, whether at a university or not. The emergent view from this process is unique.

It is because of this that we are concerned.

Apathetic student groups?

The BSU Campus Crusade for Christ recently presented Paragon films on campus. For weeks prior to the presentation the group members were actively “spreading the word.” Every classroom on campus had a reminder of Paragon, the sidewalks were chalked in with messages that were updated as they were off the mark; members of the group passed out pamphlets between classes on at least one occasion. Did we go to the films, but if I had wanted to, I knew exactly where it was being presented, on what days, and at what times.

For weeksprior to the presentation the group members were actively “spreading the word.” Usually, student organization do not show any enthusiasm for the activities of their group, thus it is understandable. Students never see any group on campus work as hard at promoting an event as CCC. Usually, student organization do not show any enthusiasm for the activities of their group, why students not in that group be blamed thus.

I have already explained your ticket to the big time. Get that campus job. Get it!

Editor, The University News:

I knew those things not because I cared, but I went because I knew exactly what was being presented, on what days, and at what times. As a result, I no room for debate. And as a result, there is no room for different cultures, as reflected in the diversity of the American psyche.

What kind of a cage do you keep Stephen King in? King is a writer, and a has been a prolific one for many years. His work has been very popular, and has earned him a lot of money. It seems unfair to try to restrict his freedom of expression.

Tolerance is the key. If we want to live in a peaceful society, we must learn to accept and respect the beliefs of others. This is especially true in the case of artistic expression. Let's give Stephen King the freedom he deserves and let him continue to write whatever he wants.

Black History month features three films

In support of Black History month, SPP will be featuring three movies this week. A Soldier's Story, South Africa Belongs to Us, Bill Cosby on Prejudice as well as The Princess Bride. A Soldier's Story is an intense, exhilarating, suspenseful movie that is, on the surface, an investigation into a murder, but underneath that, it is an investigation into the heart-wrenching and familiar question of how a black man lives in a white society. South Africa Belongs to Us is a film about black women in South Africa and was shot secretly with the help of two black women journalists. Through interviews with typical women and comments from four women activists, the film makes clear the devastating impact of apartheid on black women and black families. Also featured in the film is an interview with Winnie Mandela, who has become a symbol of resistance in South Africa. Following up, South Africa Belongs to Us is Bill Cosby on Prejudice. The Princess Bride will be shown on Feb. 15 in the SPEC at 7 p.m. and Feb. 17 in the Student Union. Ada Lounge at 9:15. On Feb. 19, A Soldier's Story will play in the Student Union. Ada Lounge at 7 p.m. South Africa Belongs to Us, followed by Bill Cosby on Prejudice, will be shown on Feb. 21 in the SPEC at 7 p.m. Admission is free to all BSU students with an activity card, $1 for faculty and staff, and $2.50 for the general public.

The annual faculty art exhibition will be held Feb. 15-March 4, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays. The exhibition, held in the BSU Gallery of Art on the first floor of the Liberal Arts Building, will consist of works reflecting the varied interests of the department's 22 faculty members. A reception for the artists will be held in the gallery Feb. 17 at 7 p.m. Admission to the exhibit is free, and the public is invited to attend.

Musicians to play

BSU student pianists Gay Pool and David Tacher will present an evening of duet pieces on Feb. 18 at 6 p.m. in the Morrison Center Recital Hall. Pool and Tacher will be assisted by senior pianists Lora Borghoffhaus and Lusinn Pits, and the performance will be directed by BSU professor Madeleine Hau. Pool and Tacher will perform works by Schumann, Rimsky-Korsakov, Rachmaninoff and Milhaud. Admission to the recital is free.

Gymnasts set new team record

BSU gymnasts set a new team record as they overwhemed Southern Utah State 182.0-166.35. BSU's previous high was 180.05 last year during the conference championships.

In another record setting day, BSU individual marks included Cassi Harlow's 9.5 on the uneven bars and Lisa Frelck's all-around score of 37.1. A school record 46.85 also was set in the floor exercise.

BSU and the State moved to a 1-1 record overall. Their next scheduled meet will be at home against UC-Santa Barbara at 2 p.m. Feb. 20 in the Auxiliary Gym.

The University News

The BSU basketball team is back in the Big Sky Conference's driver seat after a two-game road sweep of the U of I and Eastern Washington University.

BSU is tied with the U of I in the Big Sky after last week's play, but the Broncos have three of their remaining four games at home, while the Vandals play four of their final six on the road.

A crowd of 6,500 turned out for the return of the two to 1-i state rivals in the U of I Kibbie Dome. BSU had handed the Vandals their only conference loss, but the host team wanted revenge.

After a shaky start, it looked as if the home fans would get their revenge. BSU jumped to a quick lead, but the Vandals went on a torrid shooting spree that saw them miss only one shot until late in the first half. Idaho maintained leads of seven to nine points for most of the first half.

That was until the never-say-die Broncos, who kept fighting back just to keep the game from becoming a runaway, closed to within five on a couple of Chris Childs three-point plays.

Eight ticks remained on the clock, and a recently inserted Brian King took the pass just outside the paint and fixed away with Vandals defenders despairing seemingly.

All set, this final bucket of the first half left the Broncos trailing by two, 33-31.

"I thought we closed at the first half," BSU Head Coach Bob Dysaid, "was a big part of the game"

The game was reminiscent of the Broncos' only road loss, when they could not put away the Northern Arizona University Lumberjacks. Except this time it was BSU who would not be put away.

"We felt better about our situation with the percentages," Dye said, referring to Idaho's 57 percent field goal shooting in the first half. The law of averages tends to have a way of balancing things out, and the Broncos had stayed close when the Vandals were hot.

"Our game play included 40 minutes," Dye said, "Think 40 minutes, I don't want to just have asked him players before the game. And it worked. Wilson Foster drew first blood for the Broncos in the second half to tie the game, then Arndt Jones put Boise State up by two, and the visitors were off on a free-throw run. Idaho, who did not get to the number-one position in the Big Sky by folding, stayed with the Broncos until the 12-minute mark.

Brian King entered again and produced another three-pointer. Then with U of I fighting back with a tenacious defense, which appeared to be on the verge of forcing the Broncos to turn the ball over without a shot, Chris Childs nailed a veritable downtown thumper of a pointer which quieted the crowd and visibly took the wind out of the Vandals' sails.

U of I never regained their poise as Boise State went on to register 69-58 victory as the Broncos dropped their second conference game to the Vandals.

Childs led the Broncos with 17 points, while super-subs Brian King and Mike Sater contributed six points each but all were key buckets at crucial times.

With the Broncos back in first place, Dye said, "I wouldn't be surprised if we get several games that are like this.

Lady Broncos 13-7 overall

by David Dunn

The University News

By defeating the U of I for the second time this year, the BSU Lady Broncos basketball team managed a split in their Mountain West Conference action last week.

Playing the second half of a two-game road trip, the Lady Broncos dropped a close, 63-60, decision to Northern Arizona University on Feb. 9. Despite outscoring the Lumberjacks by 16 points from the floor, BSU was unable to extend its conference record to 5-4 and their overall record to 13-7. The Lady Broncos also suffered a rebounding domination with 13.

The victory boosted BSU's conference record to 5-4 and their overall record to 13-7. The Lady Broncos will end their home stand with a game against Eastern Washington University Feb. 15, and they will face Weber State on the road Feb. 18.

BSU's Cassi Harlow sets a new school record of 9.5 against Southern Utah State Feb. 13.

that "we have to go take care of business" at EWU.

The BSU Broncos came tearing out of the chute, trouncing the EWU Eagles 89-62.

Eastern Washington was only in the game at the opening tip-off. BSU was ready to play, to take care of business and to be number one again.

"We didn't want it to be one of those games that goes down to the wire and something goes wrong," Dye said.

Everybody but Mike Sanor, who had the flu, got to play and score. Childs was perfect from the field; King hit four straight enroute to a season-high 18 points; the notorious Bronco "Burger" team accounted for 39 points, Kyle Wendahl got his first point of the season and senior Bob Dunn got his first field goal.

"We talked all week about it being a two-game road trip," Dye said. "I thought our guys did a real nice job."

The Broncos face Weber State Feb. 18 in Ogden, Utah, before hosting the ISU Bengals Feb. 20. BSU is now 19-3 overall and 10-2 in the Big Sky standings.
