Perpetuating a New Tradition

The beginning of a long tradition started last spring on the BJC campus. A group of BC's and Golden seniors, with absolutely no experience but with plenty of courage and with the help of several instructors, reenacted the Miss America contest at Atlantic City.

Although this coming Saturday night will mark the last pageant that is hard to accomplish without the aid of faculty and student cooperation, the tradition started last spring on the BJC campus will continue.

Many were involved in the making of this pageant. A group of BC's and Golden seniors, with absolutely no experience but with plenty of courage and the help of several instructors, reenacted the Miss America contest at Atlantic City. One of the most important aspects of the pageant is the selection of the queen. The judges for the pageant were Miss Annarita Caporale, Miss Annarita Caporale, and Miss Annarita Caporale.
