
The Youth of Idaho Has Room to Grow

It is very unlikely that any place in the world offers its youth greater opportunity for a fine future than does Idaho. The pioneering is mostly done but the growth has only begun. Past and present generations have built the trails to natural resources of timber and minerals. Man-made dams and great irrigation and power projects have created agricultural and industrial opportunities which beckon to the hands and minds of the generations that will develop them, profit by them and expand them. Yes, there's room for youth to grow in Idaho and the tools to cultivate that growth are already at hand.

Power for Every Need

Idaho Power's $78,000,000 expansion program is an example of private enterprise planning and working for growth of the Snake River Valley.

Since the war, Idaho Power has nearly tripled its capacity to serve. Thus, the new industries and developments that have come and are coming to Idaho—phosphorus, fertilizer, cobalt, antimony, smelting, to name a few—bringing with them employment and payrolls for Idaho people, have, in every case, found dependable low-cost electric service ready and waiting.
