In-State Tuition: Students Struggle

by Michelle Hartell
Associate Editor

Boise State students, faculty, and Idaho State Legislature have united in a fight against the bill. In a press conference sponsored by the BSU Lobby on January 31, the three presidents of BSU, U of I and ISU presented a combined statement on the In-state tuition bill. In this statement there are three major problems that would accrue from the bill:

The increased cost will lead to more federal aid which leads to taking more money from the state general fund which produces a snowball effect. Federal aid comes from the taxpayers pockets. Raising the cost of education will make more students eligible for aid creating a greater need for tax money which the legislature will be looking for in next year’s session.

The best students will attend other competitive state institutions. Since Idaho will have no cost advantage over other states, there will be no incentive to attract students.

Many students will be denied the opportunity of higher education, due to the cost. This problem would drastically reduce the enrollment of BSU due to commuting costs and the students who presently have to work to afford college.

Boise State students, faculty and Boise State University, University of Idaho and Idaho State University have united in an effort to lobby against the bill. In the bill’s first stage, the committee recommended a “do pass” by an 11 to 5 vote.

The members of the committee voting against the resolution included representatives Valher, Blochhoff, Marley, Gurnsey and Betcelspacher. Those voting in favor of the measure were Representatives Sessions, Hale, Dean, Beitelspacher. Those voting against the resolution included representatives Walker, Whisler, Mr., Stivers, Wische, Stivers, Reynolds.

Interviews with some ASBSU senators show that they support President Cramer and Dave Clark in their efforts but have made no moves to personally help in the lobbying. Each student must let their legislator know about their concerns according to Cramer or each student will have to face the fact that Idaho students will have to pay for their college educations.

In-State Tuition: Reduced-Price Tickets

Plitt reduces student rates

UA—The Plitt Theater chain, which includes the Egyptian, Midway, and Eighth Street Marketplace theaters, is offering Boise State students, faculty and staff movie tickets for only $1.50 off the price of a regular booth. The $0.00 tickets, which are good for any show at the above theaters any day of the week, can be purchased at the Student Union Building Information booth from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. A valid student activity card or current faculty I.D. is required to purchase the reduced-price tickets, but several tickets can be purchased at one time; the tickets have a July 1 expiration date.

Mike Henthorne of the SLB info booth said that the tickets are being offered as part of a nationwide arrangement between Plitt Theaters and Universities. Henthorne also said that the info booth will post a marquee listing what movies are playing at area Plitt theaters.

Anti-war Group Calls Registration

Philadelphia, P.A.—The Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors has announced that they are recruiting individuals who are opposed to participation in the military.

Larry Spears, director of CCO's Youth and Conscientious Objector Campaign, says, "The need for young people to go on record as conscientious objectors to war has never been greater than it is today."

According to Spears, "There is a very real possibility that Congress will pass a bill, after the 1980 elections, requiring the mandatory registration of young people with Selective Service. Young Americans should start thinking about whether they could participate in the military."

Spears says that CCO has already registered a surveyed 120,000 people through its conscientious objection card.

Those interested in obtaining a conscientious objection card from CCO's headquarters, 501 S. 12th St., New York, N.Y. 10011. A new sixty-page free leaflet, "Why We Live," will read 15 articles by some of the nation's leading authorities on energy, the newspaper series will explore the history of energy technology and consumption, the impact of alternative energy policies, the effects of current energy dilemmas on the national and international scene.

Courses by Newspaper is a project of the University of California, San Diego, and is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The first class meeting will be held Feb. 12, 1980. The series will include all four parts of the Henriad: Richard II, Henry IV, parts one and two, and Henry V. The second series in a six-year cycle, will include six plays that will air every other Wednesday night, beginning Feb. 27, on KAID television.

Each course will concentrate on a different aspect of the plays, and the other, through a series of articles in The Idaho Statesman, will look at the choices that will shape America's energy future.

The Shakespeare plays, the second series in a six-year cycle, will include six plays that will air every other Wednesday night, beginning Feb. 27, on KAID television.

Dr. Charles Lauterbach, BSU professor of theatre arts, will discuss each play during lectures to be given every other Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 163 of the Science Education Building. The first class meeting will be held Feb. 12, in room 163. The plays will be funded by grants from Exxon Corporation, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and Morgan Guaranty Trust Company.

The reactions by State officials to the rally by the Idaho teachers on Friday were not particularly optimistic when asked if the demand for 13.2 percent increase could be met

Gov. Evansproposed a 8.5 percent increase in the education budget, according to Rep. Jack Kennewi, and it is unlikely more will be given.

"If there were to be a larger increase, it would be minimal because of the tightness of the budget," said Kennewi. "And I would say the 8.5 percent increase has popular support in the house.

The grievances of Idaho teachers include per-pupil expenditures that rank 48th in the nation and the lowest average "teacher" salary of seven surrounding states. They maintain that the level of education in Idaho will decline without the 13.2 percent increase.

According to Rep. Walter Little R., the House majority leader, it would be difficult to fund such an increase. “This year, with the one percent initiative,” said Little, “we might only be able to give the 8.5 percent increase recommended by the governor.” In the previous six years, the legislature has given $30 million more to education than the Governor proposed, said Little.

Rep. Doyle Miner, chairman of the Joint Appropriations Committee, said there might be more money allocated to the proposed education budget. According to Miner, the Revenue and Taxation Committee is holding $10 to $11 million in case they need to return that money to counties to cope with the negative effects of the one percent initiative.

"If we can, we’ll add that money to the pie," said Miner.

Sen. John M. Barker, chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee, said the only way to increase the education budget is to take funding from something else.

"We could take it out of the higher education budget for colleges, or form state Medicaid, or we could reduce the salaries of other state employees," said Barker. "But no one I’ve talked to wants to do that."

It is possible that money will be taken from the higher education budget, said Rep. Dorothy Reynolds. She added that there is not enough money for a 13.2 percent increase.

Survey Predicts More Jobs for Grads

The Idaho House Education Committee voted 11-5 last Friday to send House Joint Resolution 47, which would allow the issue of charging in-state tuition at Idaho’s colleges and universities, to the house floor with a “do pass” recommendation.

The vote came after the committee heard the university and student body presidents of Boise State, Idaho State and the University of Idaho suggest that imposition of in-state tuition would result in decreasing enrollments and a simple shifting of funding from the state to the middle class families of the state.

The Idaho House Education Committee voted 11-5 last Friday to send House Joint Resolution 47, which would allow the issue of charging in-state tuition at Idaho’s colleges and universities, to the house floor with a “do pass” recommendation.

The vote came after the committee heard the university and student body presidents of Boise State, Idaho State and the University of Idaho suggest that imposition of in-state tuition would result in decreasing enrollments and a simple shifting of funding from the state to the middle class families of the state.

BU President John Kaiser argued that the committee was simply considering the costs without taking into account the benefits universities provide to offset that perspective.

The sponsor of the resolution, Rep. John Sessions of Driggs said that the measure would only provide an option for higher education passed by the voters of the state. His object, he said, was to give the voters of the state a chance to make a real choice on the in-state tuition issue.

Sessions went on to say that the imposition of modest in-state tuition would keep Idaho competitive with other states in the region. Kaiser said that in-state tuition might be imposed instead of the fee structure that presently exists.

Representative Kent Walker of District 33 took issue with that view and suggested that in-state tuition would be almost a blank check to raise money while the present fee structure allows and encourages university as well as student input.

Final consideration of the resolution is expected to take place during the next week.

Most employers, though, said they were more interested in recruiting students with bachelor’s degrees than those with associate, masters or doctoral degrees.

Shingleton also discovered beginning salaries will be up seven to eight percent over last year. They far exceed the em- ployers surveyed said starting salaries they offer are negotiated during the hiring process, while the remaining two-thirds of the employers set salary levels before

Insurance Refunds Available at BSU

by Michelle Hartell
Associate Editor

BSU-Boise State University's student insurance policy fee of $30 is automatically paid when a full-time, in-state pays his/her registration.

Students excluded from this charge are those receiving CETA aid, disabled Veterans and faculty staff students who already have insurance policies. Part-time students are excluded as well. Those students not falling into the previous class but do have another insurance policy which covers them, may request a refund of the full $30. Students wishing to receive their refunds can go to the Insurance Information desk found on the 2nd floor of the Student Union Building (SUB) in the Senate Office.

Gordon Phillips, Director of Administrative Services, said, "The State Board of Education passed a bill providing students with the (insurance) policy and the option to retrim the policy only if proof of other coverage could be given."

Accident, sickness and medical benefits are offered to the student 24 hours a day during the semester under this plan. Whether a student is at school, at home, traveling or on vacation--they are still covered.

Items such as impacted dental work, pregnancy, ambulance, physician and hospital fees are included in the policy as well. Passed a bill providing students with the policy, eviction or other questions contact the Insurance Information desk between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. during the week.

Law Causes Debate Over Entrance Tests

Denise Tracy
Arbiter Staff

BSU-The infallibility of the computer is once again being questioned, this time in the area of testing. Since the passage of New York State's "truth-in-testing" law effective January 1, 1980, a national debate has been raging over whether or not test results should be used to make decisions.

Those in favor of the law advocate their right to see not only their score on a standardized test (such as the ACT or SAT), but the correct answers as well. Those opposed argue that such a law will make it impossible to retest the same test, thus increasing cost and complicating administration.

New York's law has two major stipulations. First of all, within 30 days of returning the scores testing companies must send copies of their standardized exam results to the New York Commissioner of Education. Secondly, students will be given copies of their answer sheet along with the correct answers to the exam upon payment of an additional fee. According to CPS, the College Board now offers the ACT only half as often as before in New York, has raised the exam fees, and has stopped scheduling special test dates for handicapped students and others.

A third proposal reported by the CPS is to make public exams optional. Students who want their exams back could be required to pay more and take it only at certain times. All other students could choose it at a different time and at a lower cost.

The "truth-in-testing" controversy is also a result of the failure of several students being accepted into law school due to the passage of the bill. Inquiry into the situation revealed that an erroneously scaled test and that their actual scores were much higher.

Eight states are now considering "truth-in-testing" laws including California, Colorado, Florida, New York, Ohio, Maryland, and Pennsylvania. On a national level, it will be presented to Congress this spring.
The question was "Is there any sign of patriotism among these students at B.U. after the election?" Boolean The students' response was "No, because the topic immediately under discussion was the imminent pre-draft registration expected by Jimmy Carter. The answer was: "Not necessarily because the answer to this question that ignores the complexities of the current situation, the lessons available in historical fact, and the capabilities and the thinking human mind to go beyond that which is immediately visible. Fundamental to the current complexities is the definition of the word "patriotism." Unfortunately, too many people simply define it as blind, unquestioning devotion to whatever the leaders, elders, or other authority figures who have taken charge say is patriotic. Such thinking human mind to go beyond that which is immediately visible. Fundamental to the current complexities is the definition of the word "patriotism."

The question now becomes, what can I do, as an U.S. citizen, that will be in the best interest of my country? Along with this basic question, goes another: what are the best interests of my country? Boycotting the Olympic Games? "Turning on the lights" in Iran? What Peace? Nothing considered? Truthful confrontation of such choices can only be made in relation to the basic questions above, especially since it is freedom of speech upon which this country was founded become a mockery and we are returned to slavery not unlike that now experienced in the U.S.S.R.

Walden large numbers of other grad students say is patriotic. Such devotion is not necessarily detrimental, given the leaders, elders, individuals. Students, teachers, say that events around that affect people's lives are more...and we do not learn from history. War does not end war, we do learn from history that war is good for the economy. It is only coincidental that war and economic policy are always in such a way that war brings about in whatever way is needed for a particular war. There is no such thing as a war to end all wars, for the economy. As the annual birthday, the leaders...for the benefit of the American lives on the line to save consumption, blood for ". That is needed for the student press. It is a straight forward trade. President Carter is fitting to the great applause of aging patriots. He is profitably bringing us to think this business of change might be to our advantage: blood for oil. His State of the Union address told us that an attempt by any outside force to gain control of the Persian Gulf region would be regarded as an assault on the vital interests of the United States of America, and such an assault will be repelled by the sea power of the United States, with all the necessary means of military force." Translated, that means: We are oil junkies, and we won't let anybody cut us off our daily fix. We will see "any means necessary" into the ground, and we don't want to see the student press. We will not discipline students. We will not discipline our students. We will not discipline the students. We will not discipline the student press. It is an important foundation in the argument that private colleges have a right to censor or otherwise restrict the student press. While private colleges are bound by the law and the Constitution in other ways, they are allowed to abide the freedoms of student journalists. Any one of any color, political or irrelevant to the student press. No, it can be called counterfactual. The Press Corporation is a blue-chip corporation that manages a national news service in order to make Chrysler every prosperous manufacturer of cars in America. Damages now ask: when Americans will start fighting for oil. What is the average average? What is the average average? The profits of the oil companies.

No, our country is our classmates who are already fighting for their country. The administration does not want to open fire. It is not our time, even our time. We are not fighting for democracy. We are not fighting for democracy. We are not fighting for democracy.
Different philosophies have always met—and sometimes have clashed—on campus. In 1980, be on the lookout for a trio of organizations that are as committed to establishing themselves as leaders of diverse movements in this decade: The Libertarian Party, the U.S. Student Association, and University Professors for Academic Order.

The Libertarians are a collection of liberal and conservative factions that oppose federal intervention in social areas (health, welfare) and the economy (energy and income distribution), and oppose pro-Pentagon policies (the U.S. "police" role) as well. They are against laws on victimless crimes and staunchly defend civil liberties. George Reck has been feared as much as a federal day care centers.

The Association was formerly National Student Association, but revelations 13 years ago that CIA funds financed it forced a name change. The group has been left strong left-of-center stand on issues. Some Jewish students have been turned off to USAS because of its support for radical domination, while many black and minority undergrads feel that the tone—sometimes approaching extreme leftist—is unrealistic when economic gains are a fact of life.

The Association lobbied heavily in 1978 and 1979 for student aid plans to be included in the CAP (Capital Appropriations Plan). A staff of six in D.C., and budget figures hover around $75,000. Believing that "some schools deny political and social rights to students," Jacobson thinks youth will respond to USAS's calling. One project calls for organizing directly on campuses. Regional conferences are to be used in the movement, and a plan to create single colleges within a university system to join up is being designed.

A popular figure with colleagues at Oregon State University, Fred Norman, has been a luminary with University Professors for Academic Order. This outfit's hope is that standards will return to what they were in the pre-grade inflation era.

The play, Side by Side by Sondheim, promises to be on the better nights of the college populace. Fred Norman, the group's leader, sees a "progressive coalition against sentiments of the corporate establishment" as the key to student success in the next few years.

Conservationist Receives Award at Boise State

BSU—Boise State University honored Namapa resident Ted Trueblood, author, hunting and fishing expert, and conservationist, with the President’s Award for Western Life and Letters during halftime of the 1979 Boise State basketball game Thursday, Jan. 31.

Born in Boise in 1913, Trueblood began his writing career the year he graduated from high school. He has since sold over 1000 articles to various publications and has been editor of several others, including Field and Stream and Bike Magazine.

Trueblood has also written four books, his latest, “The Ted Trueblood Treasury of Hunting,” was published in February, 1978. “With his knowledge of trout fishing, particularly, is unparalleled. Mr. Trueblood has also been a leader in the conservation of wildlife and wilderness areas,” said Boise State President John Keiser during the award presentation.

He personifies service to Western outdoor life, working closely with state and federal agencies.

Trueblood manned the campaign that led to the creation of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission and has served 25 years on the Idaho Wildlife Federation. At present he is chairman of the River of No Return Wilderness Council, designed to promote wilderness classification of Idaho’s primitive areas.

Recognized since 1960 for his efforts in promoting conservation, Trueblood’s more recent accolades include: Conservationist of the Year Award from the Idaho Wildlife Association, 1973-74; Conservation Award from the Department of the Interior, 1975; and Outdoorman of the Year Award from the Outdoor Writers of America, 1975.

“As long as the relationship between men and nature is an important theme in American life,” said Keiser, “Ted Trueblood will be recognized as a major commentator on it for his generation.”

University Defies Previous Projection

by Wilma M. Woods
Associate Editor

BSU—in his State of the University address to the faculty and staff, Boise State University President John Keiser stated that financially, the institution had fared better than had been projected a year ago.

However, Keiser said, “My intent has been to make it as clear as possible to decision-makers what another year of funding below the rate of inflation would do.” The president did concede that Gov. John Evans’ budget for the university “(is) better than last year’s” and would “prevent further cutbacks in personnel.”

In his message, Keiser listed goals for the forthcoming year. Included was the formation of a School of Public Affairs and the establishment of a Western Studies Center that would engage in research, conservation and exploitation in the Intermountain West.

Further, the position of School Director for the School of Vocational-Technical Sciences has been formally advanced to Dean. Applications are now being considered, and a final decision will be made sometime in March.

Construction on the new Morrison Center and the multi-purpose pavilion will be delayed largely on the economy, Keiser said. The projects will cost approximately $10 million with $5 million to come from public funds.

In concluding his address, Keiser said, “I believe the state of the University to be generally sound with plans for a bright and constructive future.”

Survey

applicants walked through the door. Even education degrees, until recently considered express tickets to the unemployment line, are more valuable in the job market, the survey found. Demand for math, science, industrial arts and special education teachers is especially strong.

The University of Wisconsin, for example, announced three days after Grinstead announced his findings that it had placed 77 percent of its 1979 education graduates in teaching jobs. Only two percent of those graduates will to relocate didn’t get jobs.

The Michigan State study confirmed that relocation is a major factor in most hiring decisions. Most companies said convincing graduates to move is their most difficult recruitment problem.

The majority of job opportunities this year seem to be in the south-central, north-central and south-west regions of the country.

The deadline for submitting a petition to Waiver Student Health Insurance is February 15, 1980. You can pick up waiver forms from the Campus Representative, located in the Senate office, Student Union Building. Office hours are 2 to 4 Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. The Information office in the SUB also has Waiver forms.
Broncos Do Well At Invitational Meet

The Boise State Wrestling team led by the starring efforts of Kevin Wood won three of five dual matches last weekend. The Broncos continued their success in the Big Sky. The hard working BSU team wrestled five dual matches in five days as they increased their league record to 4-1 and their overall record to 7-5. Boise State started out on a sour note last week when they lost to Utah State 25-15. They re-grouped and blew Montana State out of the gym, 41-3, winning nine of their matches. The Broncos competed in a tri-dual match Saturday in Ogden, UT, where they won two of three matches. BSU downed Montana 31-14, beat Northern Arizona, 27-19, but lost to Weber State 24-11.

The losses to Utah State and Weber State were understandably what worried Coach Mike Young the most.

"I hate to overstate the word, but it describes what happened to us against Utah State the best. We were just flat," said Young. "We didn't wrestle anywhere near our capabilities or even close to how we wrestled later in the week."

Harold Whitman, the regular 190 pounder, suffered a slight injury to his ankle and was lost for the week. This caused Young to juggle a few wrestlers around.

"We moved Kevin Wood up from 167 lbs. to 185 to fill in for Whitman. He had a great week in the lineup. His injury had a big effect in the outcome of both of our losses," said Young.

"Against Utah State it cost us at least 10 points and maybe more. With what we would have gotten from Harold and from Kevin at his usual weight, we would have tied or beaten them. Even with our half effort we should have beaten the Aggies with the team we put out on the mat," continued Young.

"Weber State pinned us at 167 lbs. and with Kevin Wood there, I don't think anyone would have pinned Kevin," said Young. "Curtis Gooley at 118, Doug Pugmire at 134, and Bill Braase at 177 all had very close matches and few with breaks and we took them with our whole team."

Wood led the Broncos winning all five of his matches. Eloy Thompson II at 158 added four more wins and one forfeit.

The team will take on Northwest Nazarene College in their next match Thursday in Nampa. BSU won't be competing with their entire varsity as some members will get a much needed rest.

The next home match will be against a tenacious Idaho State team next Tuesday night starting at 7:30.

BSU Wrestlers Make Strong Show

Three Weeks Left in Big Sky

As The Sun Sinks Slowly...

by Jerry Richards

Having crossed the January zenith, the sun continues its inexorable westward journey and in three weeks will set in the Big Sky. Five games per team will decide which of the Seven Devils make the four-team playoffs at the end of the rainbow.

If they don't punch each other's lights out first.

Well, it turns out Weber State can be beaten after all, but who ends up doing the thrashing? Way, little old ugly sister Idaho.

Whatever demon possessed Yours Truly to predict the Vandals would continue to warm the league fruit cellar has been thoroughly exorcised by this time, and a second-place finish for Idaho seems imminent — but mind you, five games are left...

...and even though Boise State has lost its second and third home games this year, three remain — but one is Idaho — but a strong rally can sure come out of an "Athletes in Action tongue" and a few days to reflect and scheme.

If I may throw in a few more buts in an article already saturated, three other teams are in the same position, including Montana State, who are a game behind, but one that Tuesday and what worries Coach Whitmer is the league isn't. Northern Arizona is also strong (who in this league isn't) and Nevada-Reno and Idaho State look to have more than a prayer.

In any case, though, don't expect light at the end of the tunnel before sunset; by that time, it'll be up to the top four to produce their own sparks.

Gymnasts Win Another

(UA)-The BSU Gymnastics Team easily defeated the University of Montana last Thursday afternoon scoring a 120.216 to 123.25 victory. This meet gives the Broncos a 7-5 win and loss record with an average score of 120.0 for the season.

Martha Howard, a freshman from Reno, Nevada, won 1st place all-around honors with a 32.45. According to coach John Head, "This was one of the best meets Martha has had this season." Howard tacked an 8.35 on vault, an 8.0 on bars, an 8.15 on beam, and a 7.96 on floor exercise. Martha has been consistently scoring in the top three all-around positions along with her sister Mary who scored a 32.05 to capture 3rd place in this meet.

Kelly Parker, freshman from Boise, took first place on vault with an 8.5 and on bars with an 8.3. Shaugh Aster did a super beam routine dancing her way to an 8.4.

Coach Head said, "This was the best the team has done away from home. This meet was an excellent indication of how we will be scored at regionals. We had four of the best judges in the region, two of which were rated National Elite. The scores were right on and we learned what we must improve on before going to regionals in March."

The Broncos squad travels to Cheney, Washington to meet Eastern Washington University on Feb. 15 and then on to Moscow, ID to meet the Vandals on the 16th.

BSU Women Host Montana Schools

(UA)-The BSU women's basketball team will host the Montana State Bobcats and the University of Montana Grizzlies in weekend action. The Broncos will take on the Bobcats Friday, Feb. 8, at 8:00 and the Grizzlies, Feb. 9, at 5:45.

The Montana Grizzlies also defeated the Broncos earlier, 75-52. They hold a 4-4 conference record and a 14-5 overall season.

The game against Eastern Washington was perhaps the worst game we've played this season. It was a disappointing loss," said Coach Thorp. "It was so important we pull together to defeat Washington State the next night."

Ruth Fugleberg was high scorer for the Broncos, despite an eye injury. Fugleberg's 16 points in the Washington State game was followed by Karla Miller's performance in the second half. Miller's 13 points and 6-6 from the field helped seal the win for BSU.

"We made some changes in our lineup against WSU and it seemed to spark the entire team," stated Coach Thorp.

BSU Needs Big Win

by Bud Humphrey
Arbiter Staff

Only one game is on tap for the Boise State men's basketball team this weekend, but like so many of the Broncos' matches lately, this Saturday's game with Idaho is a crucial one. BSU has lost three straight Big Sky games.

BSU beat the Vandals earlier this year in an overtime game of which Bronco coach Bus Connor commented, "we won it twice." Since then, however, Idaho has won five of six Big Sky games, including a 71-68 win against Weber State.

At 5-4 in conference play, Idaho is tied with Montana for second place in the Big Sky. Idaho also has the second-best overall record in the league, with 13-8.

Ball control is assured for coach Don Eibonson's Vandals by the high-scoring guard duo of senior Don Newman and freshman Brian Kelennan. With 17.2 and 10.8 points per game respectively, the 6-3 guards combine for 9 assists a game as well.

Newman, a second-team all-league player who was drafted by the NBA last year, was injured in the Weber State game, and didn't play much in Idaho's 86-50 romp over Idaho State Saturday, but should be healthy for the BSU game.

The mostly-short front line is anchored by junior Jeff Brudie, a 6-11 strapper who is third both in rebounding and scoring. More flashy around the boards are Ron Miben and Gordon Herbert, both 6-5 juniors who showed the ability to staff against Weber, but can run with Newman on the break as well.

Strong individual performances were the keynote of Boise State's last two games against Idaho and Weber State. Larry McKinney, 6-10 and one of the Broncos' leading rebounders, led the team in caroms both games and added consistent sharp outlet passes.

Dave Richardson, who along with McKinney averages 8.3 rebounds from the center position, contributed 25 points in the two games.

However, neither could get crucial baskets from the inside when Idaho State beat BSU 47-46 last Thursday, and McKinney still had trouble Saturday when Weber squeaked by the Broncos in overtime 79-73.

Dave Williams poured 29 points in at the Weber game and drew several late fouls. Fellow guard Rodger Bates also scored in double figures and added a raft of assists in both contests. Matt Wilkenson, 6-7 sophomore, has accounted for his starting position well both in scoring and rebounding, and top substitute John Anderson pulls down rebounds consistently.

Richardson and Williams each scored over 20 points in an exhibition loss to Athletes in Action, 94-72, last Monday night at the Bronco gym. Richardson also outbounded the rest of the field, pulling down 12 boards.

Now at 0-12 overall and 3-4 in conference, Boise State must win all its remaining regular season games to claim a winning record and be assured of a Big Sky playoff berth.

One loss in the remaining five games will leave the Broncos a chance, depending on how BSU has played against any teams tied with them in conference standings.

This Saturday's game will begin at 8 p.m. in the Bronco gymnasium. It will be broadcast over KBOI Radio, 670 AM.

Seminar Slated

Dick Anderson, noted Tacoma-based seminar leader for the United Learning Institute, is returning to Boise February 13th to conduct another evening session sponsored by the WICCA. His February seminar will be entitled, "Release Your Brakes: How To Maximize Your Potential." The information contained in the seminars can be used to accomplish things that few people dream of. In "Release Your Brakes: How To Maximize Your Potential," participants will learn how to communicate effectively and how to improve relations with business associates, customers, family.

In addition to the February 13th Seminar, the WICCA will be scheduling a special Dick Anderson seminar for teens in April. For more information regarding these programs, phone 343-3688.

Lecture to be Given

St. Francis of Assisi as portrayed in art will be the Feb. 6 topic of Boise State art historian Dr. Felix Heap in the seventh program of the university lecture series this year. Heap, associate professor of art and curator of the University Gallery, will talk at 8 p.m. in the Boisean Lounge of the BSU Student Union Building, on "The Evolution of Ideas and Images about St. Francis of Assisi in Art." St. Francis (1183-1226), Heap says, has achieved world fame and a reputation for being one of Europe's first nature mystics. He will discuss the famed cleric's "joyful and attractive personality" and depictions of St. Francis in art from his own era up to the 16th century.

From 1949-63, Heap himself was a member of the Franciscan order founded by St. Francis in 1209, and received a master's degree in Franciscan studies from the Franciscan Seminary, Chaska, Minn., in 1964. He also has master's degrees in art and graphics from the University of Notre Dame and in philosophy and art history from the University of Minnesota, where he obtained his Ph.D. in art history in 1974. He was awarded a National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship to Columbia University in 1977, and taught art courses at the universities of Minnesota, Utah, and North Texas State before coming to Boise State in 1979.

The university lecture series is sponsored by the Associated Student Body of Boise State and the Faculty Women's Organization which requests scholarship donations for attendance at the lecture.

One-man Comedy Openes

"Is There Life After College?" Comedian Bill Alexander will explore the humorous possibilities as he appears at the Boise State University Special Events Center Thursday, Feb. 7, at 8 p.m. The one-man comedy theatre production opens as Alexander interviews for admission to the college of his choice, "it's not easy getting rejected from 23 different universities," and concludes with "the Great Revelation" of his senior year—that there are no jobs.

A production of New York comedy writer Andy Goodman, "Is There Life After College?" is sponsored by the special events committee of the Boise State student programs board. Tickets for the production will be available at the Information booth in the BSU Student Union Building at $1 for students, and $2 for the general public.
Winter Concert to be Given

The Boise State University Percussion ensemble directed by Dr. John Baldwin will present a winter concert, Friday, Feb. 8, at 8:15 p.m. in the BSU Special Events Center.

Joining the ensemble for the program will be Catherine Elliott, mezzo soprano, and members of the BSU Opera Theatre.

The percussionists with Elliott will perform "Maska of April," a seven movement work by John Jeffrey Davis based on poems by Hester G. Storm.

The program will continue with percussion works "Three Movements" by Roger Keaglei and "Balalaika Holiday" by Morris Alan Brand.

The ensemble will join with the Opera Theatre performers in Owen Clark's "Night of the Bocor," which follows the Bocor—keeper of the walking dead—and his attempt to acquire a dead man's soul over the opposition of his lover.

Orient Trade Explored

A one-day conference on the cultural and business impact of international trade between the U.S. and the Orient will be conducted at Boise State University Feb. 12. The conference will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the BSU Student Union Building. The public is invited to attend lectures, panel discussions, and a film free of charge.

Program to be Presented

"Theatre on the Western Frontier," Dr. Charles Lauterbach of BSU's Theatrical Arts Department will present an hour's program covering the period of 1845-1895 on entertainment available. Included is comedy, melodrama and serious drama. The life of John Langrishe will be highlighted. This program has been prepared under a grant from the Association for Humanities in Idaho (AHI).

This program will be presented at 1:30 p.m., Sunday, February 10 in the auditorium of the Boise Public Library, sponsored by the Friends of the BPL.

BSU Offers Help With Parenting

A one series of six free demonstration-lectures for parents will begin Feb. 7 at Boise State University. The series will open with discussion of family goals of behavior at 7 p.m. in room 252 of the BSU Education Building. The programs are offered as a supplement to parent discussion groups scheduling to Boise this winter, and are open to the public. Sessions include lectures and demonstrations with question and answer periods. For further information about the series, contact Dr. Katherine Vidner, BSU Parent Education Center, 382-430.

Church to Speak

Idaho senator Frank Church will speak at Boise State Tuesday, Feb. 12 at 10:30 a.m. in the Special Events Center.

His talk is sponsored by sociology, history, economics, political science, and communication groups on campus.

Congressman Steve Symms, who announced his opposition to the 1980 congressional race, was their guest-speaker Jan. 26.

This week the critics went to see American Gigolo, which features Richard Gere and Lauren Hutton, and is currently playing at the Miero Theaters.

Anthony Burt

The most interesting question is: did director Paul Schrader run out of bucks finishing American Beechake, or does he suddenly shift cinematic styles in a futile attempt to add "realism" to his film's finale? In the first hour, when all is glamour and luxury and success, every shot is an Oil of Olay glide over shag carpet and plush upholstery. It's camera-by-camera. In the final fifteen minutes when—horrors—it's unshaven jocks and wrinkled jeans, we have an hour's worth of drama in about six Polaroid snapshots.

If the style of these unstaMing and unbelievable final scenes are plagiarized (from Bergman's Scenes from a Marriage—bomced in Kramer vs. Kramer), American Gigolo has whole scenes ripped off from other films: shades of Traviata, preening in his bedroom for disco madness in Saturday Night Fever or Warren Beatty, having his zipper pulled down by Julie Christie at a Republic celebration in Shampoo.

There's no question about the quality of acting. The minor characters are from TV. Lauren Hutton, who co-stars with the gigolo, is from the ranks of SUBAL Theater rejects. Only Richard Gere, the gigolo, shows about seven inches of talent.

Don Barten

American Gigolo is a film that has to be taken for walks, can live on Alpo, and probably could fetch ducks; to wit, it's a dog. The message of this lumpy of celluloid seems to be that anyone who isn't beautiful or can't dress like a fashion model is beneath consideration and should probably be put to sleep. The tone of the film is summed up by the fact that the most courageous act that the protagonist performs is to walk into a Beverly Hills restaurant without a jacket and tie.

Barbara Jones

Tree chis. Tree slick. I really didn't want to see this movie but my editor pressed so that there would be a significant amount of explicit sex. Well, he lied. Not only was there little sex in American Gigolo but there is little acting, plot, coherence or anything else. This movie is not worth the drive to the theater, nor is it worth my time to write about it.

Karl Knapp

He has a nice car. He dresses well. He prefers older women. But boy is he a schmuck. Richard Gere-is in the wrong profession; rather than acting, he should be modeling clothes for Gentlemen's Quarterly Magazine. American Gigolo is not a movie that fails flat on its face at some crucial point in the action; it begins in the beginning position. However, I will say this in behalf of AG: it's consistent.

Mime Draws Large Crowd

BSU's Interfraternity Council grossed $707 at the MIMF Show to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Approximately 250 tickets, tactically received Mike Young and his assistants as they performed various sketches in mime and pantomime at the Special Events Center.

Proceeds from the event will go toward the purchase of orthopedic appliances prescribed to patients at the Fampa clinic for distribution in the Southern Idaho District. These appliances help patients like the new Idaho MDA Poster Child, Brenda Sartor, Five-year-old Brenda appeared at the Saturday night MIMF performance and will be competing in March in the National MDA Poster Child competition.
Ticket Sales Continue for Morrison Benefit

"Sids by Sids by Sonchaim" is being presented during the month of February at the Special Events Center. Of the eleven performances scheduled, all but two are sold out. They bring February 14 and 15, February 14 has been designated as student night, thus allowing the students to experience quality and production value for $7.00, or just the performance for $3,001. Tickets are now on sale for student night, February 14 at the Information Center in the SUB. They will be on sale until February 11, 1990. Any tickets remaining will then be sold to the general public. Ticket sales are going well and it is recommended that tickets be purchased this week.

Movies

Some of the most powerful dramatic and uproariously funny plays to come from the stages of Broadway and London have been filmed as feature movies and have been purchased by KAID-TV to be broadcast here beginning Saturdays at 10:00 on Channel 7. The films are "Butley," "A Critique Balance," "Galileo," "The Homecoming," "In Celebration," "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," "Last in the Stars," "Luther," "The Muis," "The Men in the Glass Booth," "Rhinoceros," and "Three Sisters."
